Groups Attacking Drug Problem Here Ask for Public's Assistance

Over 100 kids in Princeton are involved with heroin, with no place to go for treatment. And it sometimes seems as though the town has a drug committee for every drug user.

This week, two new drug groups came into the news. Upon their ability to find ways they can work profitably together, the life and death of many kids may depend.

The older of the two began spontaneously last summer out of conversations between Len Brown, the gifted young black Princeton University graduate who runs Community House and is assistant director of the Youth Center; Jerry Sanders, the YMCA's floating youth worker and the Rev. Bill Kight, who is the Grand Old Man of Princeton's street workers ("Minister to Youth for Princeton's Presbyterian Churches," is his official title.)

Others in town who work directly with kids all the time were drawn into the group. At present its membership also includes:

- Florence Burke, assistant principal of the high school;
- Nancy Hartnett, director of the Institute for Applied Psychotherapy's program;
- Charles Huchet, director of Special Services for the schools;

- Seymour Plawsky, director of Family Service;

- Joann Stephenson, Seminary student, part-time Youth Center worker, PHS graduate and native-born Princetonian;

- Shirley Van Ferney, child psychiatrist;

- Hilda Waletzky, social worker who specializes in drug cases.

The group is called the Professional Co-ordinating Committee for Drug Education, Prevention and Treatment. It is not an acronym. "And that's symbolic," says Bill Kight tartly, "because getting on drugs doesn't spell anything, either."

The other drug group, still to be formed, is the Commission proposed by Borough Council and Township Committee and endorsed by the school board. Council is expected to act next Tuesday on forming the Commission; Township Committee may act October 18.

This group would consist of members of the governing bodies and school board, possibly Board of Health members and one or two citizens.

"We are unhappy that Borough and Township plan to establish a committee without professionals," Mr. Brown said at a press conference this week. "It looks the same as the Princeton Drug Committee — a group without direct contact with kids."

The Brown group says it is prepared, as professionals, to assume the responsibility for advising the governmental bodies, coordinating agencies' work in the drug area, evaluating programs and providing a long-range, comprehensive plan for dealing with drugs in Princeton. The group would not provide direct drug-abuse services.

The group presented its plan to Borough Council, and has met with individual members of Township Committee, but so far both bodies prefer their own Com-

Planning Board May Sue Man If Retained to Survey Housing Needs

Housing needs in Princeton, curiously linked with the possibility of legal action against those who surveyed housing needs in Princeton, occupied members of the Princeton Regional Planning Board in executive session Tuesday night. The Sternlieb report on Princeton's housing hasn't been released to the public yet by the Regional Planning Board.

But it will be published October 15 by Transaction, Inc., of New Brunswick, as "The Affluent Superb: Princeton" and distributed by E. P. Dutton & Co. at $9.75 a copy. Review copies have already been sent to newspapers.

The copyright is held, according to the hard-cover volume, by Transaction. The copyright page states, at the bottom, that "this volume was prepared for the Regional Planning Board of Princeton, New Jersey, by the Center for Urban Policy Research, Rutgers, the State University. . . . Dr. George S. Sternlieb, director of the Center, Robert William Burchell and Lynne Sagalyn are on the dust-jacket as the authors."

Timing Discussed. Last summer, when the Planning Board first learned, in some alarm, about Dr. Sternlieb's publication plans, board chairman Hans K. Sander and board attorney William Miller met with Dr. Sternlieb and according to Mr. Miller at the time, "obtained Dr. Sternlieb's assurance that publication will follow the Planning Board's own release."

The Planning Board is not merely dismayed over a scoop. Its members eye the $9.75 price-tag and speculate on the income to be derived from sale of the book, perhaps assigned as required reading to a large number of graduate students in urban planning.

Royalties, some board members say, might help defray the cost of the survey itself.

The board decided Tuesday night not to try and prevent publication of the book by injunction. However, the board did not foreclose the possibility of legal action concerning copyright.

Press Conference Planned. In any case, the report now exists more or less publicly. Next Tuesday, the housing sub-committee of the planning board will hold a press conference to make a public report on the report.

As weeks go along, there may be public hearings on such matters as conversions, possible Planned Unit Development, the number of housing units to be put on the Master Plan map after Princeton Community Housing, and so on. The Planning Board's housing committee has been working with the data since April, meeting once a week all summer.

As pointed out by Golda Gottlieb, chairman of the housing subcommittee, the report has a broad regional approach which doesn't always narrow in to the specific answers sought for Princeton by a Princeton agency — and indeed paid for by a Princeton agency. This has slowed down the sub-committee's schedule. For example, Although the report is laden with data, charts and tables, Mrs. Gottlieb's sub-committee had to go back to Mr. Sternlieb for answers to these questions:

- How many employees work in Princeton but do not live here? What are their family sizes and incomes?

- Concerning Princeton's "underhoused" who need more space and live in overcrowded conditions, what is the breakdown by family size and income?

- How many elderly (over 65) are there in Princeton and what are their income levels?

- What is the housing demand as seen by Princeton-based employers, as opposed to area employers?

Dr. Sternlieb met with the sub-committee September 21 and provided some of the data, promising the rest shortly. In some cases, the information had already been obtained by the Center's surveyors; it simply hadn't been used in the published report.

The report is extremely detailed (the book is 223 pages long) and Mrs. Gottlieb smiles at the task of going through "all this mass of data, and coming out with a housing — Continued On Page 4

Highlights of Princeton Housing Survey

Although many of the facts charted in the Sternlieb housing survey are all too well-known to many Princetonians ("there seems to be a deficient number of available homes costing between $17,500 and $24,999,") other facts uncovered by the surveyors may be less obvious.

Here are some highlights:

- In Princeton's "underhoused" areas — Witherspoon Street, Linden Lane and the Tree Streets — a higher proportion of blacks than whites are homeowners.

- In the Witherspoon and Tree Street areas, 71.1% of all homeowners have no mortgage and own their homes outright.

- In the Witherspoon area, 40.4% of the residents are over the age of 65.

- "Reshaped" households are vital in Princeton. Decreasing households — middle-aged couples with 3.2 people in the family and the prospect of grown children moving away — account for 22.6% of Princeton's population. About 75% say they want to stay in Princeton. Increasing households — young married couples or singles — account for 15.8%. Over 70% of these increasing households have been in Princeton less than five years. They are mostly renters.

- Many low-income homeowners don't improve their properties because they are afraid improvement will bring increased taxes.

- Small manufacturing firms, like laboratories or photo processing companies, pay higher salaries than the large companies like IBM.

- Unemployment among the poorly housed in Princeton is very low. Only one household in 100 respondents was reported to be on welfare.

The Witherspoon area, has a high proportion of service workers and white-collar employees; the Linden Lane area is about half-and-half blue collar and service; the Tree Streets have 61% employed in white collar jobs.

Mr. Brown urged this week that they reconsider. He points out that his group is perfectly willing to take in any new members Council or Committee might appoint — but the group isn't willing to drop any of its ten members, regarding each as a valuable professional.

He stated that Borough Police Chief Peter J. McCrohan and Township Chief Fred Porter were "very positive" in their support of the group.

Rule Defined. Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley says he feels the group should have an active role in drug work, with direct access to governing bodies, and he adds, "I'd like to see them linked in a direct way to our new Commission: it would give them the clout to act where they need to act, and would give them a way of reporting directly to us."

Township Mayor James A. Floyd endorses the Commission because, he says, "we must have governing bodies responsible. We need an organization that can draw all the drug groups together, ferret out the best ideas, tap the community's resources. I wouldn't want this group to be the only one, to the exclusion of anyone else."

When the Professional Coordinating Committee says it doesn't like the political cast of a Commission consisting of elected officials, Mayor Floyd replies, "It must be political! It's the elected officials, the politicians if you will, who have to make the decisions." The Brown-Kight-Sanders committee believes that, as day-to-day professionals, they know what the needs are. With the blessing of the governing bodies, they believe, they could prod agencies into action.

For Example. The Princeton area has no established Methadone maintenance program and no established detoxification program for heroin users. The Brown-Kight-Sanders Committee estimates 100 heroin users in the community.

Princeton House, the Mt. Lucas Road branch of Princeton Hospital established as a mental health center, charges $110 a day, excluding treatment, for drug cases, with a $500 cash deposit required for admission. (Geriatric patients at Princeton House, according to the Rev. Mr. Kight, are charged $35 a day.)

Admission Refused. Two heroin users have already been rejected by Princeton House, Mr. Kight says. He reported that officials told him they were waiting for the appointment of a new Medical Director who would set policies in this area.

Mr. Kight and his associates would like to see a Methadone program at Princeton Hospital, and he says all that is required is the space for a refrigerator to contain the Methadone. (Mr. Brown observed that it could be storefront space.)

According to the Committee, Princeton Hospital Administrator Walter A. Seligman said ten days ago that the hospital would have Methadone in two weeks. (The hospital's public relations spokesman told reporters later that Mr. Seligman really meant to say the hospital was still studying a Methadone program and had reached no decision.)

At present, heroin users must either go 20 miles to the Hunterdon County Medical Center for Methadone therapy, or to Trenton State Hospital.

Delay Harmful. There is a waiting-list problem at Hunterdon. Dr. Van Ferney, Mr. Brown and Mr. Kight all warn that it's bad to keep a kid waiting if he's finally made up his mind to go off, to be "de-toxed." Bill Kight describes the situation:

"A kid who's weak anyway or he wouldn't be on heroin, finally makes up his mind to admit it, and comes to you for help. He's got stomach cramps and he's sick and he's read all the lurid stuff about withdrawal and he's scared to death, and he's only 17 years old anyway. Princeton Hospital says he can't be admitted, and you tell him he's got to wait two weeks to get in somewhere else!"

Such a youth, Mr. Kight warns, will commit robbery to get the money for heroin, or he'll steal Methadone if he can.

Another Alternative. Trenton State Hospital will take a kid with only a one or two-day wait, but he's locked in with the inmates of this mental hospital, denied visitors, given nothing to do and left without any counseling. Trenton Hospital doesn't like this situation, either, Mr. Kight adds.

Dr. Ven Ferney estimates 80 kids sent to Hunterdon for Methadone treatment — about 20 actually got there. "It's frightening," she says.

Court Dismisses "Tower"

Superior Court has dismissed the appeal by developers of North Square—the former "Tower" office building—because the new Township zoning ordinance amendment wipes out office buildings in the Service Zone anyway.

Judge Frank Kingfield acted last week. The developers, Collins, Uhl, Hoisington and Anderson, will not carry the matter further, according to their attorney, A.C. Reeves Hicks.

Township Committee had rejected the office complex, which was designed for the northern portion of the Service Zone in the Mt. Lucas-Route 206 area. The developers appealed that rejection to Superior Court. Last month, Committee passed, 3-2, the zoning ordinance amendment eliminating office buildings from Service.

"WOMEN IN POLITICS": That's the subject of Monday's meeting planned by the Business and Professional Women's Club at the Nassau Inn. Taking part will be Leonore Danielson, past president of the League of Women Voters; Alice Male, Mary Perone, Barbara Smoyer and Marie Coan, current officeholders in Princeton, who are shown here with Wanda Mendez, BPW Legislative Chairman. Snorgashord at 6:30 will precede the open meeting at 7:45.

Square was to have gone, lies in that Zone.

The September 20 vote was 3-2 in favor of eliminating offices. Mr. Wallace cast one of the "no" votes, Committee-man Dean Chace the other.

Democrats Surprised. Mr. Wallace's sudden action took Mayor James A. Floyd and Committeemen Thomas Hartmann and Jay Bleiman by surprise. "I wish Mr. Wallace had notified us earlier of the move he planned to make," said Mr. Bleiman. "I'd like to discuss the proposed ordinance in executive session before we vote."

"That's precisely why I moved last month to table the amendment—I wanted to discuss it in executive session!" Mr. Wallace retorted, "but you went ahead and adopted the ordinance anyway, without a chance for discussion."

Mr. Wallace protested again, as he had in September, that the ordinance amendment eliminating offices had been brought forth too abruptly, without chance for discussion.

He added that eliminating offices from the Service Zone "relegates the two major entrances to the Township—Alexander Road and Route 206—to a permanent 'gasoline alley' status, where warehouses are allowed, but not office buildings."

Mr. Chace seconded Mr. Wallace's unexpected new ordinance and his reasons for introducing it.

Mr. Bleiman reminded Mr. Wallace that the Township's own Planning Board had voted against office buildings in that zone.

Party Vote. The vote was expected: Messrs. Floyd, Hartmann and Bleiman voting against Mr. Wallace's measure, and Messrs. Wallace and Chace favoring it.

Mr. Wallace persisted, after his measure had lost, and suggested the question be referred back to the Township Planning Board for reconsideration.

Mayor Floyd said he and Mr. Wallace, as members of the Planning Board, might bring it up "if we feel strongly that the board ought to re-investigate. We could recommend another look."

Mr. Hartmann declared that he accepted fully the Planning Board's original recommendation against office buildings in Service.

The matter now hinges on the outcome of the November elections. If a Republican is elected to Committee, presumably Mr. Wallace would introduce his new ordinance again and with the present 3-2 balance shifted in favor of the Republicans, the measure would pass. Both Republican candidates have spoken favorably of North Square.

If the Democratic in-

For Business Buildings. The North Square office complex once proposed for Mt. Lucas Road just won't get out of the news (see box), or out of the political arena, for that matter.

Unexpectedly, Township Committeeman John D. Wallace introduced on Monday night an ordinance allowing business offices in the Service Zone.

Just two weeks ago, Committee had amended the zoning ordinance to forbid office buildings in the Service Zone. Mt. Lucas, where North policy." "First, we must meet the backlog of housing demand," she explains, "then we must develop an on-going program for the future. Everything must be done in terms of what Princeton can absorb in what experts call the 'infrastructure'—that is, sewers, utilities, water supply, schools and services. And we must consider the available land. We don't want Princeton to become another New York."

Mrs. Gottlieb declines to talk about a specific housing policy until later. She does emphasize that any policy will be directed toward the people who need housing the most.

"In studying the report, we've had to go from the large demand for housing, to the question of real NEED," she says, and this distinction will be basic to whatever housing policy for Princeton is developed.

Drug Problem Studied

With official recognition of their group, Mr. Sanders believes, "we could negotiate with Princeton Hospital, point out the needs for co-ordination with the county's drug clinic and Princeton agencies, spell out a community policy on drugs — you see, some Princeton police don't understand the drug problem, and don't see the positive kinds of things they could do."

This group also looks be

2nd Bike Registration

Borough police have scheduled another Saturday when adults may have their bikes registered by the police in the gymnasium behind Borough Hall. New date is October 16 from 9 to 12 noon.

Lt. Michael Carnevale reported that even though it rained Saturday for the first adult bicycle registration, the response was favorable enough to warrant scheduling it again.

Gone for the Season

*My rainy lawn
Is six feet high.
Won't get mown
Till next July.*

Mild and wet has been the weather story for six weeks, and there's no immediate change in sight.

A bit of sunshine should filter through, however. What's more there's something novel to look forward to: if this weekend does not produce rain (and right now the chances are fairly good it won't), it would be the first such two-day period since Labor Day.

yond to the day the kid comes home "clean" (some have been detoxed seven times).

"Negative things are re-inforced," Mr. Brown observes. "He hasn't been working, he's labeled as a school failure, his family situation is already bad, there's nobody in the community to pick him up."

The group also speaks scornfully of Princeton's recreational activities, comparing the number of tennis courts to basketball courts, which would be valuable for black young people.

Assistance Essential. "There MUST be community wide recognition of this very serious drug problem," Mr. Brown emphasized, at his Committee's press meeting. He underscored the need for community action again that night speaking at the school board meeting held to discuss school drug policies.

The meeting, which gathered Tuesday night in Community Park School, wasn't designed as an action meeting, and the board took no action. But it listened to principals, psychologists and social workers talk about schools and drugs.

"Two things are vital," observed Charles Huchet. "What do you do to help a kid heavily involved with drugs, and nobody here tonight knows the answer to that, and what do you do about drug education?"

In the Middle School, reported principal Thornton Grove, there isn't much drug use, at least during the day in school, and the board's policies seem to provide adequate guidelines for action.

No Pat Formula. Miss Burke, formerly principal of the high school, commented that, "You deal with problems as you can. I never felt I had to follow a strict recipe."

Dr. Huchet complained that Princeton Hospital didn't provide information on what was wrong with a child, and Dr. Nathaniel Boonin suggested that the hospital had no right to report to the schools about a child without the parents' consent.

Dr. Boonin, Mr. Kight and most of the other participants seemed to agree that enforcing the law was essential. An illegal act committed on school property, Dr. Boonin observed, was just as illegal as if it were committed elsewhere.

Mr. Kight pointed out that anyone withholding information about a student on drugs or in possession of drugs, was guilty of a misdemeanor.

The question of teacher responsibility was also discussed. What protection against student reprisal, for example, is provided for the teacher who turns in the names of students involved with drugs?

The meeting closed with Mr. Brown's repeated assertion that "Drugs are the town's biggest problem," and his suggestion that the school board take the lead in pulling the town's efforts together.

hents are re-elected, the Democrats would retain their 3-2 majority and the question of office buildings in Service Zones presumably would die.

New Sidewalk. Committee passed, unanimously, the ordinance for constructing a new sidewalk on Snowden Lane between Braeburn and Leabrook.

The Township will split the cost with property owners, but the municipality itself will bear the whole cost of acquiring additional land.

POLITICS

Borough Republicans. The race for tax collector occupied Borough Republicans this week, while Borough Democrats pondered the needs of the community's older residents.

A part-time elected tax collector is not needed in Princeton Borough, claims Mrs. Christine St. John, present collector who is not running again for office. The one who is running, is Laurence Patterson, the deputy tax collector and treasurer, who is full-time man in the tax office. He is re-appointed to his job each year, and has held it for over 15 years.

Mrs. St. John and the Republicans want to see Mr. Patterson elected so that the two jobs — elected Tax Collector and appointed Deputy Tax Collector — can be combined. Mr. Patterson, who does all the work anyway, Mrs. St. John says, would then be full-time elected Tax Collector.

Borough Democrats. An experimental "Dial-a-Ride" program for senior citizens was suggested this week by Borough Democratic candidates. An elderly citizen, under the program, could ask for a ride to visit doctor or hospital. Volunteer drivers could be used.

Ned Schneier, mayoralty candidate, and Council candidates Alice Male and John Strange, propose a community center for senior citizens where volunteer projects and recreational activities could be pursued. They also suggest an "ombudsman" for older citizens in Borough Hall — an official or volunteer with knowledge about Medicare or Social Security.

Reduced mobility of older people requires housing close to downtown, the candidates say, promising close examination of new plans for parking lots or commercial developments in the Palmer Square area to see whether moderate-income housing for the elderly could be included.

BOROUGH NEWS

Clean-up and Street Paving. Nobody is charging Borough residents with being slovenly, but Administrator Robert F. Mooney warns all householders that the end of clean-up week is this Friday, and so far, people haven't been getting their debris out to the curb for pick-up.

Drivers will find three street portions temporarily closed Monday - Tuesday - Wednesday while a thin overlay is applied to the road surface. Streets affected are Linden, between Hamilton and the Township line, all of Jefferson and the remaining section of Cleveland.

"Blues for Mr. Charley" Draws Praise for Fine Production

The pleasure of seeing a company of players coalesce, grow, and change — come into power — before our eyes must belong only to reviewers, constant theatergoers, and God.

Though I cannot speak for God, I have witnessed the beginning and satisfying fruition of the Hansberry Arts Workshop under the direction of Don Evans. On the stage of the Youth Center the community and its players have met, joined hands, and made art; in doing so they have made history. This is where theater must be: among people. In every important way, this is where the people live.

This sense of appropriate order in place and time is transferred from the company and survivor to his enslaved town is entangled with that of his white murderer, Lyle Britten. It is an inextricable morass of confrontations, anguish, and destruction that seems to float down to us today as if a dream out of a time we can barely remember. Martin King lived then, and people felt faith and anger enough to march to Washington! Oh, the time of this play is long, long gone, and we view it with a cynicism that seemed impossible to us then.

And time has changed this play, too, from drama to document: it is a kind of pyramid we look to in order to find out the faith of men who no longer exist, perhaps, or to remember the dreams that sickness, evil, and bloodshed have driven us out of. Dream? Nightmare.

There are many problems to this play — really it is a novel onstage — and they are handled well by the Hansberry company. To list players will distract from the unity of this group: they and it are excellent. (They know who they are, and so does anyone who goes to see them.) This is the best acting Hansberry has done, the best in a series of excellences. All of these characters give us a full sense of the ambiguity and conflict demanded: we seem to see every one as someone's victim, every one suffering, every one feeling pain, the gift of history.

The conflicts — religion against human need, justice against friendship, love against community to the current production of James Baldwin's difficult and flawed and immense "Blues for Mr. Charlie" a moment in theater and literature that seems too huge for any small space to control. (This Friday and Saturday, 8:30 p.m. at the Youth Center.)

Surely my language cannot replace the experience of seeing and feeling this exhausting and uncompromising work. Exhausting, yes, because of its size and the sorting out of feelings that must be done. So I recommend it as a mawkish giant of a play that has been made small and tangible with expertise and control that is exciting and withering and demanding.

This is a dangerous, talky play, the kind that could lose an audience fast. But we listen and watch, sometimes wanting to rise and cheer, sometimes wanting to hide from the grinning dog, mottled by history, that snaps and froths and bitches at our heels. Hatred destroys it all: all human relationships, all friendship, all mercy, all joy, all love, all possibility for men to live like men.

BED & BOARD is the final chapter in Truffaut's film biography of Antoine Doinel (Leaud) which began with "The 400 Blows" and continued with "Stolen Kisses." Antoine is now married (to Caude Jade) and Truffaut explores their first painful years of marriage and parenthood. his film version of D. H. Lawrence's 1930 novella is every bit as good as Ken Russell's adaptation of "Women in Love" — and exceeds it in some respect. It is the story of the sensitive, sensual Yvette (Joanna Shimkus) who returns from France to face the boredom of vicarage life in North Country England. Director Christopher Miles is remarkably faithful to the Lawrence original, and the film is full of superb vignettes — as well as a dazzling performance by Miss Shimkus. (Rated R) lovelessness — have not passed from our lives. But we are now living in an era of different rules, different protagonists, a different set of consciousness, and different rules of war.

At the very least, we must see this play as a vital and essential part of our cultural education. What Baldwin wrote as a contemporary racial confrontation now teaches us what it was like to live in a time we can barely recall: hopeful, full of possibilities and its and wishes; full of strength, heavy with threat, but somehow full of words that could cause the heart to soar with a vision of what would happen, someday. It hasn't happened yet.

Richard, dead, is still with us, sick with hatred, loss, and pain. He drinks his hatred in as he vomits it out, just as one drinks venom in order to become immune; it fills his blood. Though he dies, he is here and he keeps on and on, with courage and audacity that stun and defy reason.

It all reaches us as a dream does. But the quality of the Hansberry company keeps this dream in proportion, gives it a life both human and possible without compromising the excellence of the play as metaphor.

This integration of real voices and the phantasmagoria of race relations in America recalls a truth of the past that Baldwin limns. America was made of blood and envy and sickness and the festering wounds of sexual brutality for four centuries. It is today. But no more, we dream, no more, no more.

The play has been scheduled for November 12-13-14 and 18-19-20 in the Little Theatre of the Unitarian Church, and although the cast has been set, the production crew would very much like some volunteers. Those who would like to volunteer are asked to call Egan Higgon at 924-0558.

Actors in the cast include people who will be remembered by Princeton audiences for performances with Theatre Intime, Summer Intime, P. J. & B. musicals, and other Community Players offerings.

Georgine Hall will play the part of Irina in the Chekhov work. Betty Hager will be Nina; Roo Brown, Pauline; Marie Miller, Masha; Anne Bredon, the housemaid.

New Cinema, in succeeding weeks, will show other films related to the "new revolution" on film, featuring the politics, propaganda and lifestyles represented in the revolution.

Titles include "Ice," "Coming Apart" and "Ramparts of Clay" by Robert Kramer; "Akraa" from Richard Myers; "Basic Training" by Frederick Wiseman; "Riverrun" by John Korty; "A Married Couple" from Allan King and the four and one-half Argentine documentary called "La Hora de los Hornos."

Aznavour is well-known in the United States as an actor and songwriter. He's appeared in "Candy," "Head Against the Wall" and Truffaut's "Shoot the Piano Player."

His songs have been sung and recorded by such artists as Connie Francis, Jerry Vale and Bobby Darin.

FOOD FETES BEGIN

At Bon Appetit. If the food mood is upon you, try Bon Appetit. There's a "Food from France" festival beginning this Wednesday, sponsored by the French government. The popular Swiss Week starts in late October, and later, Ed Poole from Martha's Vineyard will be down to introduce his frozen seafood specialties, quahog stew among them.

Bob Appetit is introducing a great many international foods because it finally has space to display them. The new shop has moved to a corner location in the Princeton Shopping Center, taking over the former Rosette Pennington space opposite Bamberger's.

There's a whole section of Japanese foods — including tempura batter mixes, tea, soy sauces, Japanese-style macaroni packaged with flavoring cubes, and even the bean threads that look like spun sugar, used mainly for decoration.

From India, mango chutneys, curry powders and paste, bismati rice, and, from Nairobi, "gram" flour.

Foods from the Middle East being introduced include Turkish dolmas — which are vine leaves stuffed with rice, onion, parsley, dill, black raisins, spices and pine kernels. From Cyprus, orange blossom water and rose water. Try Tahin Falafel mix — for meatless meatballs, or halvah, a Lebanese dessert sweet; or couscous from North Africa.

For those who love, or want to try Indonesian foods, set up a "rijstafel" — the Dutch Indonesian style of buffet. "This is an intriguing blend of Dutch and Indian cooking," Carl Andersen, Bon Appetit's busy owner, will tell you.

French Food. There are French girls here this week to give you samples of cuisine. You'll find them hard to resist. Bon Appetit has such marvels as roulade of ham, all sorts of cheeses, French chestnuts — some sweetened to serve with ice cream, others pureed or whole. Buy prepared crepes suzette, or crepes Bretonnes au rhum, or with Grand Marnier. And a mouth-watering assortment of patisserie. Think about strawberry-filled, almond-topped cake.

The shop also carries an excellent French bread which is home baked. It has the authentic crisp crust and flavor. The assorted Scandinavian breads include Swedish slimpa and Norwegian Julekake — a Christmas specialty that is baked and sold all year round. From the American mid-west, Swedish rye bread — including a pre-sliced snack rye.

Browsing around the new store, easily three times as large as the former quarters, we saw dietetic foods, including Droste chocolates from Holland, wafers and cookies. There are natural foods including Granola, a morning cereal, and honey wheat snacks.

The shelves hold bottled waters from five different countries, including Vichy water, Perrier, Apollinaris. And there is now a coffee machine for fresh grinds of your favorite beans. We noticed mocha java, French roast, Africa Arabica among the many types available.

Continuing on around the world, we found stuffed egg plant from Greece as well as Calamatta olives and grapevine leaves. From Argentina, the famous desert dulce de batata — some with chocolate, some with fruit, and the equally famous quince dessert. Also on hand is Argentine natural tea, yerba mate, "the tea of the gaucho." Sip it through your silver straw. From Holland, the Verkade line of dessert and tea cookies — so varied that it's choice is terribly hard. And try the delicate almond macaroons, Amarettini.

As for cheese — Bon Appetit has a 28-ft. display case filled up to there with the time honored cheeses from home and abroad. Bon Appetit's international staff will help you select, and even slice off a little taste, if you're exploring.

WITCH'S BALLS

At Country Antiques. Back in the days when old wives' tales held us in thrall, the placing of a ball of colored glass in your cream jug was the way you scared the witches away, and kept the cream from souring. Sometimes the balls were filled with yarn — to keep the witches busy.

Country Antiques at 173 Nassau Street has among its comfortable disorder a small batch

MASTER CHARGE and BANK AMERICARD HONORED

DJELLABAS, as worn by Mrs. Cherry L. Chang of 11 Murray Place, caftans and tunic-dresses in Indian silks and cottons designed by the house of Aminara of Bombay and Poona, will be modeled informally this Friday from noon on at Joseph Amari's in the Princeton Plaza, Nassau Street.

It's New To Us

of witches' balls, made in South Jersey around 1820, according to Mrs. Lucian Waddell, proprietor. Choose amber brown, pale green, or a wedge-wood blue and hang it from a chain in your window.

On another tack, the shop has regional silver to peruse. From Yates of Trenton, a coin silver ladle; from Nathaniel Coleman of Burlington, who died in 1805, six matched teaspoons that are austere beautiful.

From J. Kendall of Wilmington, a spoon with the love bird on the bottom of the bowl (late 1700's), and there are others from Pennsylvania and New York silversmiths. Mrs. Waddell notes that there were few New Jersey silversmiths in the old days.

Country Antiques has an arrowback bench on rockers that intrigued us because there is a hinged side that locks up, making a cradle. Dated, according to Mrs. Waddell, in the 1820's, the bench has the original gold decor. It is close to, but not quite, a mammy bench, and is about three and a half feet wide.

New Jersey pottery is a specialty at Country Antiques. Mrs. Waddell keeps an eye out for gray stoneware from New Brunswick with typical motifs of birds imprinted in blue. There's a round, fat jug with "Leon Cook, Princeton" on it, and a lot of red flatware from South Jersey and Pennsylvania that the dealers are now calling "Delaware Valley" flatware.

A curious acquisition that Mrs. Waddell wishes she knew more about are the white parian tea pots, each with a frieze of the twelve apostles on the sides. "No one has ever seen a full set," she remarks. "It doesn't have the Jersey City pottery mark on it, but we know it's something very good and rare."

If you're shopping for a wedding present, try Country Antiques. We saw a belleek mug by Willets (he was a forerunner of Lenox) with three storybook fruit trees painted around the sides, gold appearing behind the leaves and a gentle green tone at the base. Belleek is a delicate, iridescent porcelain.

We found Manet prints from an old Munich album, a Remington cavalryman print, and a fairly extensive collection of Thomas Bradshaw etchings, including "Barnegat Light," "The Roadmender" and "The Blacksmith Shop." All are New Jersey in theme.

DJELLABAS FLOW IN To Joseph Amari's. "Tell me," Groucho Marx once asked a dress designer, "How long have you had designs on women?" For Farouk Rahimtoola, the answers would be "about four years."

His family enterprise, based in India, began with silk scarves and stoles and now ranges from long, flowing djellabas and kurtas to tunic-length dresses in exquisite silks and exciting cottons. You will find them at Joseph Amari's new shop at the Princeton Plaza. The plaza is a snug little shopping center on Nassau Street past Harrison. Turn in by Judy's Flower Shop.

To get back to Farouk, his family firm is Aminara of India. His mother designs the embroidery motifs that add a distinctive beauty to many of the garments. Sometimes a printed fabric is outlined in embroidery.

The Aminara collection is at Garfinkel's in Washington and Harrod's in London as well as in several Carnaby Street shops — Michael Young and Cecil G., to be exact. London is going for the silk organzas, designed with empire waistline; in Cannes, the long caftans are in demand.

The djellaha—a long square with Farouk's innovation of an embroidered cuff on some, comes in silk or printed cotton. Some have a cowl-type collar, others a soft turtle neck, held by five covered buttons at the back of the neck. The silk on some of the garments has an unevenness that is one of its beauties.

It isn't very likely that you will find two tunic-dresses or long gowns alike, as Aminara buys in small lengths — usually 50 yards at a time of the native materials.

In a dark rose silk organza, the profusion of blue leaves and flowers is outlined with gold embroidery for a festive dress. A tunic-dress of Indian brocade in striking blue and gold is matched with blue pants. A batik cotton, made from Aminara-cut blocks, is stamped with gold.

The color combinations are joyous reds, subtle greens, browns, gold, rich blues, soft lavenders.

The American standard sizes range from six to 18. A batik we liked was $25; the cotton caftans in good prints ranged from $22 to $39; Classic cotton shifts with a slight flare to the skirt range from $35 to $40, and can be worn as a tunic with pants; the silks, all lined, are priced up to $115.

News Of The Theatres

 ber 6 production of "Reynard the Fox."

The new acting group is made up of students between the ages of 12 and 17. They come from Princeton and surrounding towns, and they are available to do performances of "Reynard" for any group that wants to sign them up. Inquiries should be made by calling McCarter Theatre, 921-8700.

In the forthcoming production, Andrea Campbell will play the part of Reynard. Other roles have been assigned as follows: Brun the Bear, Katherine Berry; Ysegrin the Wolf, George Englebrecht; Rev. Epinard the Hedgehog, Nadine Rubenstein; Lendore the Marmot, Elizabeth Lichtenstein; Tieclin the Crow, Kim Powsner and Noble the Lion, Michael Godnick.

The technical crew will consist of Roger Dave Hardesty, assistant director; Alice Lichtenstein, stage manager; Dave Wiedis, scenery; Evan Ruderman and Richard Goswami, lighting; Adrienne Brockway and Aleta Moss, props; Jane Beard and Cindy Werts, costumes; Nancy Finkelstein, Andrea Haring and Leigh Ruderman, publicity and Dave Wiedis and Alice Lichtenstein, sound.

Sharon Bown and Denise Schulz are directing.

Summer of '42 (now playing) All the little episodes of the discovery of sex by adolescent boys are captured in this film — some are funny, others poignant. The setting is a beach town of the New England coast in the early days of World War II.

The acting is close to perfection, especially by the three boys, Jerry Houser, Gary Grimes and Oliver Conant. One of the girls is Christopher Norris, another is Katherine Allentuck, and the "older" married woman of 20 or so, is played by Jennifer O'Neill, who has befriended Grimes.

There is a nude bedroom scene, which director Robert Mulligan handles with delicacy. Robert Surtees' color photography is superb, and the musical score by Michael Legend is excellent.

GARDEN

Bed and Board (now playing — thru Sat.) The fourth and final chapter in Truffaut's film biography of Antoine Doinel, a figure based partially on his own childhood. Played from the onset by Jean-Pierre Leaud, the character Antoine was first introduced in the 1959 "The 400 Blows" and was also the subject of "Stolen Kisses" (1968).

"Bed and Board" finds Antoine married to his sweetheart of "Stolen Kisses" (Claude Jade), and Truffaut explores their first years of marriage.

The Virgin & The Gypsy (Sun. thru Tues.) is the film version of the D. H. Lawrence novella. Joanna Shimkus stars in this faithful version, made in Great Britain by director Christopher Miles. The setting is North Country England in the mid-1920s, people with middle-class country characters.

Miss Shimkus "has the face of a fair, slightly wacky madonna," according to Vincent Canby of the New York Times. The novella was found in manuscript form among Lawrence's papers and published posthumously in 1930.

The two films inaugurate the annual series of "repertory weeks," presented by the Garden in cooperation with the McCarter. The Garden will continue to devote one week each month to unusual films of merit which have not previously played this area in the course of normal distribution.

Sincerity Questioned

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have been following with some interest the advertisements inserted in the recent editions of your paper by an unnamed group of individuals supposedly interested in improving the Princeton educational system.

I say supposedly, because if these individuals were sincere about seeking redress to their grievances, they would have appeared at the first public meeting of the Board of Education on Sept. 27th.

As is too often true these individuals did not confront the Board publicly to constructively seek such redress. This lack of action must cast doubt on their sincerity.

DAVID M. COHEN

51 Bainbridge Street

(Editor's note: Representatives of Parents of Princeton School Children did attend the Sept. 27 meeting, but did not speak. See Town Topics, Sept. 30)

Fertile Brain at Work.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It really is possible that I may get a check from the Borough, for the suggestion I am about to make. It would not have to be much—just the take from a few overtime parking fines—but it might start a trend and stimulate a few other fertile brains like mine to send in ideas to make our Town more liveable.

If I'm disappointed by the town fathers, I still cherish the hope that the many ecology-minded citizens will show their gratitude to me for helping diminish the exhaust gas and air pollution index at Nassau and Witherspoon Streets. If so, I promise to give the proceeds to my favorite charity, and everyone knows who he is.

In other words, what has University Place that Witherspoon Street does not have? Why can we not have a ten or fifteen-second delay in the traffic signal for left turns at that corner?

Motorists vs. Bicyclists

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We were interested to learn about the bicycle registration program which the police are undertaking. Having had two bikes stolen in the last two years, we hope it works. It would also be helpful to have bike racks installed at the schools. The cement tire troughs that are now in use are of little value in preventing thefts. No matter how well the wheels are locked to the frame, a determined thief has only to pick up the bike and walk off with it. The chain or cable can be cut through later.

We noticed that a list of "dos and don'ts" will be given to each registrant in yet another campaign to educate the public toward cycling safety. We are all for this but believe that there is great need for a similar program directed toward drivers of motor vehicles. Many of them fail to recognize that they must treat the bicycle with the same courtesy and by the same traffic rules as they would a car, truck, motorcycle, etc.

We have had more than a few harrowing experiences in cycling around Princeton and most of them have been due to the carelessness or ignorance of motorists. Failing to signal for turns and thus cutting off a cyclist, failing to yield the right of way, opening a street-side door in the path of an oncoming rider, beeping and generally having hysterics when passing or wishing to pass a cyclist are the most common annoyances encountered.

The worst is the antagonistic motorist who goes out of his way (by about three feet) to let you know that he doesn't want you on the road. If a cyclist does not immediately take to the shoulder when a car comes up from behind, it is probably because of some obstruction such as a pothole or patch of gravel that would lead to a spill. As soon as possible, the cyclist will move over and in the meantime he has as much right to use the street as the motorist.

About a year ago, right here in "bike-oriented" Princeton, I saw our son narrowly miss being hit by a truck while riding his bike on an errand down Nassau Street. Through light traffic he approached the little quadrangle where Palmer Square joins Nassau. As he started across the junction, the truck began a left turn from the opposite lane on Nassau and instead of yielding the right of way as he should have, stepped on the gas with a vengeance.

It was only by swerving and braking that our son avoided being struck. There are, unfortunately, such things as accidents but this was not one of them. The truck driver was looking right at the cyclist when he started his turn and it was clear that he thought he had or would take the right of way. If I had been crossing in my two-ton station wagon, I doubt that he would have been so presumptuous.

Further along in your article, we were astonished to learn that some streets will be closed to bicycles. Despite the hazards, there are many of us who prefer to cycle when keeping appointments, visiting, doing a bit of shopping, etc.

Drivers of motor vehicles are not the only tax payers who finance the streets. We all chip in and should all have the use of the streets we pay for. True, bicycle paths would be a boon to the pleasure cyclist but it would be regrettable if the bicycle were restricted to uncluttered byways.

A bike can take you just about anywhere a car can and for those of us who rely on them, they are a cheap, uncomplicated, and pollution-free means of transportation. For the sake of the air we breathe and those parking spaces we can never find when we need them, we hope that bikes are not in danger of being kept off the streets. . . . and for the sake of the other 16,995 cyclists in Princeton, we hope that our town will become truly "bike-oriented."

A Wavering Democrat.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

On reading your column "Why I Plan to Vote Republican or Democratic," I feel the reasons given by Mr. Southerland for voting Republican are pertinent, whereas those given by Barbara Diamond for voting Democratic have no consideration of anything but Women's Lib.

Mr. Southerland outlined the qualifications of the two Republican candidates, and they are impressive. Although one of them is a woman, he did not stress that, which is as it should be, I think. The sex of the candidate should be secondary to the preparation and experience for best serving the community in the office for which he or she is running.

I am a Democrat, most emphatically in national politics at present, but at the local level more cogent reasons for voting Democratic will have to be presented than those put forth by Mrs. Diamond to satisfy me.

EDITH F. CHAMBERLIN

To the Editor of Town Topics:

This is a copy of a letter sent to Tom Southerland concerning his article on "Why I Am Voting Republican."

Dammit, Tom, why in the Invisible Boy Scouts.

To the Editor
of Town Topics:

As I entered the door of my home upon returning from leaving our contribution to Saturday's recycling, the radio was announcing an appeal for support of the Boy Scouts. Where were the Boy Scouts at yesterday's recycling?

There was a time when such an endeavor would be managed entirely by Boy Scouts. Why can't they assume a major share of that responsibility now?

AIMS C. McGUINNESS
721 Prospect Avenue

world did you have to go and write that article about voting Republican?

Now you and I know how each of us feels about ecology. We've both been concerned since long before it became as popular as it's now becoming. And we've both participated in those Saturday morning recyclings.

I don't know John Kuser or Barbara Smoyer, but I have come to know the Township Committee. And if, as you say, your concern is the "pressure to seek more tax ratables . . . always at the sacrifice of our land," maybe you should have gone to those meetings since the "Tower" was first proposed.

Fortunately for both of us, there are good men from both political persuasions on our Planning Board who are concerned as we are. But on the Township Committee, you would have found, as I did, that our staunchest allies are Mr. Floyd, Mr. Hartman and Mr. Bleiman. They have shown themselves to be dedicated to the principles you and I argue for, and have, in fact, stuck out their political necks for those principles.

Honest, Tom, it would be a tragedy to lose these allies. Had you been to all those hearings and meetings, I think you'd agree.

If John Kuser and Barbara Smoyer are the champions of ecology you say they are, and I don't doubt your word, maybe the thing to do is support them in the next election, not this one. Not now. We've got some good men there already.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In reply to "Why I Plan to Vote Democratic," printed in the September 29 issue of TOWN TOPICS, it should be pointed out that Republicans have always sought the best qualified individuals as their candidates for public office in both the Borough and Township. The question is not one of the sex of the candidate as suggested by the writer of that article. The real question is which individuals are best suited to serve the needs of the community at any particular point in time.

This year the Township and Borough Republicans have nominated candidates who once again meet that standard. In the Township, one of the candidates is a woman but more important, a highly competent person. Barbara Smoyer has served as chairman of the Adult Education School, a member of the Board of the Princeton Nursery School, has been Vice-Chairman of the Open Space Commission (now known as the Conservation Commission) and has been an officer of the League of Women Voters.

In addition, she has been on both the Princeton and national boards of Recording for the Blind, and has served as its local chairman. All these activities reflect her high level of competence and her deep involvement in social, political and environmental concerns.

The writer also states that, "Unlike the Republicans, the Democrats in Princeton Township have no separate Women's Club. The Democratic women in Princeton are an integral and important part of the party organization, and hold executive and leadership posts on every level, and not just at campaign time!"

She is obviously unaware that Republican women are an integral part of the Princeton Republicans and have held virtually every office on that board, as well as having their own organization devoted specifically to promoting active participation and stimulating political awareness among the women of the community. Republican women have also been elected to the position of municipal chairman in both the Borough and the Township. Therefore it is clear we have a long history of women and men working together on an equal and continuing basis as well as having an organization named the Women's Republican Club whose purpose is to stimulate more women to take their place along side of men as leaders in the Princeton Community.

Women's Republican Club,
PAT FRANK
(Mrs. Charles R. Frank, Jr.)
President.

MEET JOHN KUSER

Most of us are still in the talking stage of improving our environment, but John Kuser is one of those few who is actually doing something about it.

His long concern for Princeton's natural resources has brought him to the Chairmanship of the Board of Trustees of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association. This respected organization has done much to conserve the Princeton environment — and John Kuser has helped lead the way.

John earned his degree in chemistry at Princeton University and his work has been in sales and marketing management with a major chemical manufacturer. An outdoorsman, a sportsman, he has been a life member of the American Forestry Association since 1942. He and his wife Eleanor have three children. Surely John Kuser's deep concern for the Princeton environment would be of value to our governing body.

ANYTHING GROWS

At 46 Henry Avenue, Dr. Hilja Treumut has been cultivating her garden at 46 Henry Street for the past ten years, adding a wild prune tree here and an apple tree there.

The lot is only 75 by 150 feet in size, but on it you will find a lush profusion of flowers, fruits and vegetables. Her secret? "I NEVER use a chemical fertilizer!"

She points, instead, to the 4x5 foot compost pile at the edge of her garden. There are carrot peelings on top of grass clippings and windfalls from the apple tree. The batch is spaced and turned, being readied for the next plantings.

At the front door is a bowl of fresh-picked raspberries, flanked by several outsize tomatoes. In the vegetable garden, she successfully grows carrots, cucumbers, cabbages, tomatoes and squash. There are pear trees and peach trees she planted herself and a cherry tree that yields so abundantly that she cannot bear to prune it.

The flower garden seems a sampling of a seed catalogue, a little bit of everything, some of it most unusual and all of it flourishing brightly. There's also a fish pond, encircled with stone.

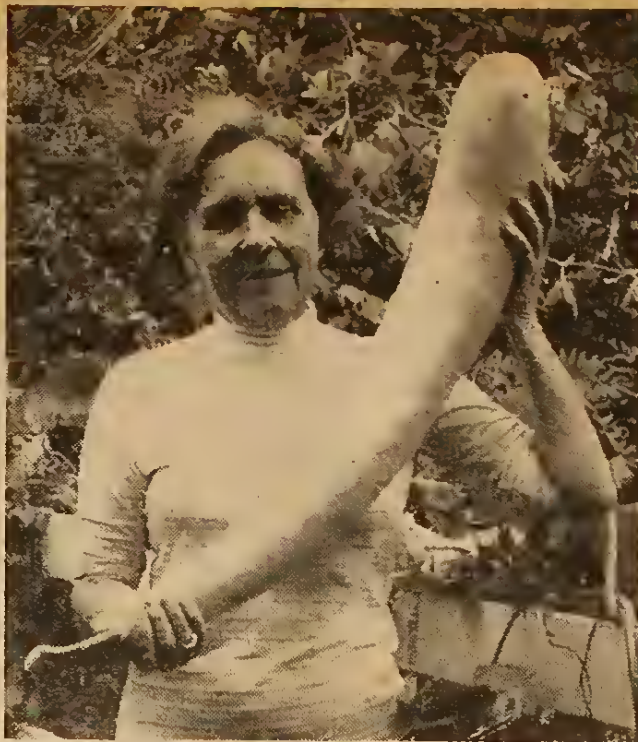

Gardening is such a hobby with her that she spaced out her summer vacation from American Can by taking a day or two a week to work with the clippers and the hoe.

Last week, lifting the 12-1/2-lb. cucuzzi squash that surprised even her by its size, she pointed to the long, 30-foot vine that trailed over the white fence on to a bush and up a tree. "I think I have cultivated every inch!"

COME TO HEARING!

On Meter Changes. Suggested changes in the all-day parking meter picture in the Borough will be discussed next Tuesday at 8 p.m. during Borough Council's regular October meeting.

Council wants to hear citizen opinion. No formal measure has yet been passed and the plan is subject to change.

SUPER SQUASH: Dr. Hilja Treumut, who gardens as a hobby, with the 12½ pound cucuzzi squash that grew in her garden at 46 Henry Street. She raises two-pound tomatoes, too, and never buys fertilizer.

Under the proposal, 64 meters would be removed from the Central Business District, 33 of them from the Chambers Street parking yard. The Spring Street lot would lose 18 long-term meters; Park Place, 9; the Moore Street lot, 4. All would be replaced by two-hour meters.

All-day meters would be installed as follows:

25 on the south side of Stockton between Nassau and Library.

15 on the south side of Spruce, along the side of St. Paul's cemetery.

14 on the west side of Charlton.

10 on the north side of Mercer, off Nassau. These meters already exist, and will be converted to 10-hour meters. All others are new installations.

NEED FLOOD AID?

Forms Still Available. Township householders who suffered damage to their homes in the Doria flooding, may still apply for disaster loans through the Small Business Administration.

Mayor James A. Floyd said this week that application blanks are still available at the Administrator's office in Township Hall.

Mayor Floyd met again this Tuesday with Mercer County Freeholders for continued talks on flood relief.

Non-Returnable Bottle Boycott Begun

The Conservation Coalition has begun a boycott of all non-returnable soda and malt bottles and cans, in support of the ordinance before Borough Council which would ban all such containers.

There will be a public hearing on the ordinance at 9 a.m. Saturday in Borough Hall. If the Borough passes the ordinance, the Township is expected to follow suit, according to the Coalition.

The Coalition has set up tables at several points in the Princeton area, Palmer Square, Shopping Center, Penn-Central Station and on campus, to answer questions, distribute literature and obtain signatures on a pledge to stop buying non-returnables.

Glass will still be accepted at the monthly recycling programs, because there are many containers, such as wine and liquor bottles, that can not be reused.

The most recent collection held last Saturday saw a drop in attendance and material, because of the rain. Recyclers who did not come are asked to save their materials for the next collection on November 6.

THREE LOSE WALLETS

While Grocery Shopping. Housewives would be well advised to keep a firm grip on their pocketbooks while doing their grocery shopping in the Princeton Shopping Center.

Three women had their wallets taken from their grocery carts last week. All the thefts took place on Friday between 4:30 and 7:15, two in the A&P and one in the Acme Market. Each victim had placed her pocketbook in the top shelf of her cart as she did her shopping.

Mrs. Sheridan Danforth of Lawrenceville Road lost $50. She told police she had picked some items off the shelf and when she turned back to her cart she noticed her wallet was gone.

Mrs. Florence Hagadorn of 20 Vandeventer lost $7. She told police that she noticed her pocketbook was open after she turned from picking items off the shelf. She looked inside and her wallet was missing. The center part of her wallet containing credit cards was found later in the center at 9 p.m.

She gave police this description of a man who had followed her around while shopping and who had acted in a suspicious manner: white, 27 to 30, dark, close-cut hair, well dressed, wearing a brown sport coat, tan turtle neck sweater and grey slacks.

A resident of 146 Philip Drive, who police identified as Mrs. S. Colomb noticed her wallet was missing when she finished shopping. She lost $80. Shortly afterwards, she received a call that her wallet had been found in the center parking lot minus the money. She told Ptl. Olindo Carnevale, — Continued on Next Page

FILM PROGRAM BOOKED

At Public Library. The public is invited to another in the series of free, monthly movie programs at the Princeton Public Library Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the second-floor meeting room.

"Flutterbye," with voices of children on the sound track, presents a fable of the flutterbye who brings good will to a bad tempered world. "The New Jersey Shoreline" covers the problem of beach erosion with reference to areas from Sandy Hook to Cape May.

"People of a City" shows Stockholm as filmed by Arne Sucksdorff in 1957. The final movie, "A Time Out of War," portrays an actual Civil War incident of enemy soldiers who call a halt to battle to exchange tobacco and rations. The program will be approximately 65 minutes in length.

LIST MEETING DATES

In Community Calendar. The League of Women Voters reminds organizations in the Princeton area that the Community Calendar is again available in the Public Library.

The purpose of this 12-month calendar is to provide a central location where each organization can list its scheduled meetings for the year. It is hoped that in this way conflicts of meeting dates

Levitt Would Bring 10,000 to West Windsor

A planned "city" on 750 acres in West Windsor Township that would take six to eight years to build and would ultimately house 10,000 is being proposed by ITT-Levitt and Sons, Inc.

Plans for the Planned Unit Development (PUD) were unveiled last week before an overflow crowd in the basement of the West Windsor Library. William C. Baggitt, Princeton attorney for the builders, told the West Windsor Planning Board that his client wants the board to rezone about 600 acres of the proposed site for construction of the self-contained community. The site is located in the area between the Bear Brook and Millstone River off the Princeton - Hightstown Road.

What About Taxes? Township residents fired a barrage of questions at Mr. Baggitt and three Levitt representatives. "What about taxes? What happens to the Master Plan?"

can be avoided. The calendar is located in the Library behind the reference desk.

BIKE "ROAD-EO" HELD

For 700 Children. More than

Where would the estimated 1,579 school children go?

The community, they explained, would contain 152 single family homes, 144 duplex units, 1,207 townhouses, 600 quadriminiums — a single building with four living units — and 1,514 garden apartments. In addition, there would be 150 acres of open space, 71 acres of neighborhood businesses and 25 acres of industry.

Russell Bodwell, vice-president of engineering for the builders, reported that the plan called for two major residential clusters, each having its own school site, recreation area and neighborhood business. Green belt areas would separate the different land uses.

The houses, said a Levitt spokesman, would sell for about $40,000, the duplexes for $31,000 a unit, a townhouse for $26,000 and a single unit in the quadriminium for $24,000.

700 children at the John Witherspoon School took part in a "bicycle road-EO" this week. Under the direction of Daniel Hornstein, the program was designed to help young cyclists develop their skill in handling bicycles in traffic. Balancing, circling, braking, and maneuvering in a limited space were practiced, and laws pertaining to bicycles were explained.

Mr. Hornstein, who is Field Representative for the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles, believes that "doing is learning," and that exposure to traffic hazards under controlled conditions better prepares children for what they may encounter on the road. He had the children practice braking on a sand and gravel covered roadway, and braking

Peace March Planned

The Princeton Branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom has planned a Walk for Peace at noon, Wednesday, October 13. The march is being held in conjunction with a Moratorium on Business as Usual called by the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice and the National Peace Action Coalition.

The group will assemble at the Battle Monument near Borough Hall, where flowers will be placed in recognition of Indochina war dead. The route will include Nassau Street, a turn through the University campus, Harrison, Hamilton and Witherspoon Streets, returning to the starting point.

All area residents are invited to participate. The walk will proceed rain or shine. Further details can be obtained from Rhoda Lewis, 921-3239, or Norma Johnson, 737-2223.

Apartment rentals would start at $200.

Early this week, Mr. Baggitt said that Levitt had informed him of a delay in its plans because (1) of its desire to avoid a political hassle and (2) the need to study points raised at last week's meeting. Candidates on both slates for the municipal elections have opposed the project.

Mr. Bodwell indicated, however, that the delay is only temporary. He said that it will require about six weeks to study various points now under consideration and that he would know by early November when a revised plan would be ready. Levitt will survey further such problems as traffic flow, the ecological impact and the economic effects on the planned community.

Prior to this week's decision, Levitt had said that the earliest date for the start of construction would be 1973.

to avoid an accident or other sudden obstacles.

'Cellist Disappoints in Season's First Concert

The world it is a-changing, but you would never guess it from the concert programming. Janos Starker, the world renowned 'cellist, opened the Princeton concert season on Monday night in the first of four Series I concerts scheduled at McCarter Theatre. His keyboard associate was the equally talented Leon Pommers who has been heard as accompanist to some of the greatest solo performers of our time.

Mr. Starker began the program with the "Sonata in C Major" by Haydn, a work familiar only to 'cellists and Haydn scholars, but certainly worth hearing. It boasts a lovely Siciliano slow movement and a fine set of variations in the Finale. Mr. Starker's soft, delicate tone seemed especially suited for this elegant composition while Mr. Pommers supported him with a deft touch and precise rhythmic control.

Following the Haydn, Mr. Starker returned to play the Beethoven A Major Sonata, one of the mainstays of the violoncello repertoire. The music requires a large, robust tone with plenty of bow.

Despite its classical formal structure, the music is really an example of early romanticism; the scherzo in particular displaying an almost 20th century rhythmic syncopated angularity worthy of Stravinsky. To say the music was less than brilliantly played would not do justice to either Mr. Starker or Mr. Pommers, but I have heard more potent readings of this work, with far more intensity and personal involvement than that which was displayed by the two artists Monday evening.

For one thing, with the piano lid slightly raised, you could not hear Mr. Starker's tone very audibly, especially if you were seated on the left side of the theatre. Mr. Pommers appeared to be making every effort to maintain a proper balance with his partner, but still managed to dominate the situation.

Then again, this work is a duo. It is as much a piece for piano as for 'cello'.

Colorless and Mechanical. After the intermission, Mr. Starker performed the Bach "Unaccompanied Suite No. 2 in D Minor." The work is in six and one-half movements (if one wishes to count the Minuet I & II as 1 1-2 pieces).

The point is that all of the movements sounded the same; smooth, colorless and mechanical. Some people like their Bach played this way. I do not.

The final two works on the program were pure drivel; the "Sonata in A Major" by Weber, arranged by Piatigorsky and a composition entitled, "Figaro" after Rossini but really by Castelnuovo-Tedesco. The first-mentioned work was not intended to be humorous, but it came off as a bad joke, perhaps one of the worst insults to an audience in memory.

The latter work was intentially funny for a short while. The familiar "Figaro" aria from Rossini's "Barber of Seville" being interpolated with lush chromatic chords in the piano, totally out of style, followed by churlish effects including tasteless runs, all with a purpose, of course, to amuse the audience. Mr. Starker played both these frivolous affairs in a light, dapper style that apparently won its point with the McCarter audience, but the sum total of the entire evening's musical fare, despite Mr. Starker's expertise, must be regarded in this writer's view as a major disappointment.

Unsatisfactory Program—We have now entered the eighth decade of the 20th century. Yet Mr. Starker offered us a program that featured the musical wares of composers who were born not later than 1792.

When Haydn composed his sprightly Cello Sonata, it was performed in his time. The same can be said of the Bach and Beethoven works. There are several major works for cello that have been written since 1900 and certainly since 1950. Except for the Kodaly sonata which Mr. Starker helped to build his reputation years ago, he has offered us very little of late in the contemporary cello repertoire.

When an artist ceases to grow musically, invariably his talent begins to decline. Considering Mr. Starker's gift, his unquestionable artistry, one would think, considering also the fee he receives for a single concert, that he would do a little homework and prepare a more interesting concert program than the one he performed on Monday.

MUSIC In Princeton

MOZART WORK SELECTED

For Society's Opening Meeting. The Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs will open its 36th season at 5 p.m. Sunday, October 17 with a meeting held at the Unitarian Church.

Dr. Ray Robinson, President of the Westminster Choir College will conduct the Mozart "Requiem" with chorus, full orchestra and soloists who have been selected from the students and faculty of the Choir College. They are Nola Frink, soprano; Allen Hegler, alto; Michael Sylvester, tenor; and Charles Hausmann, bass. The Musical Amateurs are a unique Princeton institution. Singers and orchestral players from as far away as Philadelphia and northern New Jersey, but mainly from this area, gather once a month on a Sunday afternoon from October through May to read through for their own pleasure one or more of the great works in the choral literature.

These meetings are in no sense performances; they are informal readings in which any musically interested person may participate. There are no preliminary rehearsals, except for the conductor and soloists, and the music is generally sung in its entirety with full scoring.

Participants range from those with modest sight-reading ability to singers and instrumentalists of professional caliber. All parts of the community are represented—townspeople, undergraduates, professors, commuters, high school students, housewives. The chorus ranges in size from 75 to 150 members on any given Sunday, and the orchestra from 20 to 35 in number.

No auditions are required to sing in the chorus, although anyone interested in singing the solo parts, unless known to one of the conductors, should get in touch with Mrs. Michael Ramus at 924-4266. Instrumentalists are asked to contact Robert Lohman, 921-6757, for information about playing in the orchestra.

The organization has regular membership dues or a single-admission charge at the door, to defray the cost of the music, the hall, and the refreshments served at intermission time. All meetings this year will be held in the Unitarian Church, Sundays at 5 p.m. Those wishing to attend may do so by getting in touch with Mrs. M. B. Gottlieb by telephone (921-7214), or at the door the afternoon of the meetings.

In addition to Dr. Robinson, the conductors in the 1971-72 season will include Leon Du Bois, Rutgers University Music Department; Mrs. Barbara C. Lewis, Director of the Womens Choral Society of Boston University; Professor J. Merrill Knapp, Princeton University Music Department; Joseph Kovacs, Douglass College Music Department; James Litton, Choral Director of Trinity Church; and Clyde Tipton, Rider College Music Department.

MEET BARBARA SMOYER

For 26 years Barbara Smoyer has been a prime mover in the Princeton Community. Her contributions are literally too many to list here, but here are highlights of her remarkable career:

Chairman, Adult Education School. Officer of the League of Women Voters. Member, National Board of Recording for the Blind and Chairman of the local unit. Board member, Princeton Nursery School. President, Women's Republican Club. Vice-Chairman of the Open Space Commission.

Along with this vigorous public service, Barbara has raised a family (she is married to Stanley C. Smoyer, a corporate legal counsel). She is a graduate of Swarthmore College. Her obvious executive ability and her knowledge and love of Princeton would be an asset to Township Committee.

Why I Plan to Vote REPUBLICAN | DEMOCRATIC

By Zelda Laschever

By Robert Hendry

Mrs. Zelda Laschever, 39 Scott Lane, has been active for many years in Princeton's schools, chiefly as organizer of the art-science exhibits at John Witherspoon School. She was a founder of the Princeton Junior Museum.

I'm 100% for Bob Cawley's reelection because his approach to our problems has been consistently progressive. Though elected as a Republican two years ago, he has scrupulously avoided any doctrinaire political positions which might divide the community. He has been especially open and imaginative in his handling of problems related to the young.

As the father of four children, Bob knows how important it is to be able to communicate and work with kids. I know from personal experience that as mayor he has actively supported many youth-oriented programs. During his first term, Bob offered the facilities of Borough Hall to Flight Two for play rehearsals, and, on occasions, has been available to them when they asked his advice. Through the Recreation Board they even managed to receive some financing from the town.

The Youth Center, which is now so important to the black community, rates equally high with him. The Borough is supplying them rent-free facilities, and, a year or so back, added about $16,000 in improvements. Bob would like to see the programs of the Youth Center expanded.

He is understandably proud of his decisive contribution to the Princeton Job Committee, which, during the past two years, assisted scores of young people in finding summer jobs. He wants this project expanded from a summer operation to a year-round work/study plan, with greater industry involvement in the management.

We all know that the drug scene in Princeton is serious and needs immediate attention. The Youth Concerns Committee was given a mandate to study drug abuse prevention, and, after a lot of inquiry and discussion, the borough is now contributing to the support of a new operation to combat this problem. I know Bob will watch this program closely and seek good professional consultation and evaluation.

He has supported more intensive usage of the town's recreational facilities. Also during Bob's administration, the borough helped to continue the financing of the much-needed O.E.O. Day Care Center at the First Baptist Church. He is particularly interested in the new Police-Community Relations Program which has given the police a better opportunity to understand how they are regarded by various elements of the community, including the blacks and the young.

To further improve and strengthen these programs, Bob wants to stimulate greater involvement on the part of the young people, both from the town and the University. One idea he has is an anti-litter campaign on Nassau Street which will make an important contribution to our other ecological projects. Moreover, he fully supports the proposal to establish a student coffeehouse, thus giving the young a place to meet off the streets.

When you put all these things together, you realize that Bob has been a very committed and creative mayor. He is hard-working and intelligent, and, taking a low-key approach, has translated a lot of good ideas into action.

Robert Hendry, 15 Chestnut Street, is in his second term as Council President. He is Financial Administrator for the United Hospitals of Newark.

When Leonard Berry and I ran for Council five years ago, we talked about most of the same issues that are being talked today: youth activities and recreation; crime and narcotics; traffic and parking; the housing crisis; and the needs of our senior citizens.

In some areas progress has been made. My experience on Borough Council however, convinces me that to get action on the big problems, like traffic congestion downtown, and crime and drugs, we need a tough, far-sighted Mayor. I think Ned Schneider has the ability and the vision to provide that needed leadership.

Ned Schneider was a co-founder of the Movement for a New Congress, President of the Princeton Community Democratic Organization and a Legislative Assistant to Senator Birch Bayh. He has published three books on American government; he and his wife, Jan, have just finished a ninth grade civics textbook. As an associate professor of political science, Ned combines a professional interest in government with his activities at the local level.

TOWN TOPICS regrets that Mrs. Marie Conn, the Independent candidate for mayor of the Borough, declined the invitation to be represented this week in "Why I Plan to Vote."

He is running for Mayor in part because he believes that we need to take a hard look at problems of political and organizational reform in Princeton Borough. I couldn't agree more. We need better budgeting systems, more planning for future needs (new fire-fighting equipment for one example) and better ways of involving more people in the decision-making process.

As a candidate for the Assembly, I now understand better than ever before the need for close coordination and co-operation between levels of government. We need a mayor who understands these needs. Ned knows his way around the county, the state and Washington, D.C.

State and local elections this year are important, in part because they will be interpreted for their significance nationally. The election of Democrats to state and local offices will be seen as a popular repudiation of the Nixon Administration. To support Democrats for state and local offices is to support those who object to the Nixon policies on Viet Nam, on welfare cutbacks, on economics, on bus-ing and on Supreme Court appointments. YOUR VOTE THIS NOVEMBER COULD HELP TOWARD PUTTING A

I think that the young kids in town respond favorably to this type of leadership.

As an independent liberal I am supporting Bob Cawley for re-election as mayor. He merits the enthusiastic backing of all progressives, regardless of party affiliation. Bob represents better government rather than a party line. I'm convinced that he has honorable intentions to help the town and seeks no personal gain.

He wants to use his position at Borough Hall to espouse political ideas which are extraneous to the day-to-day issues we face. I urge all concerned parents who recognize Bob's commitment and contributions to Princeton's kids to get out and vote for him on November 2.

DEMOCRAT IN THE WHITE HOUSE IN 1972.

I'm voting for Ned Schneider because he is a Democrat. "We can cope with the future," is the Democratic slogan for this year's campaign. I like that. Ned and his running mates, incumbent Council members, John Strange and Alice Male, are talking about the need to plan for and anticipate change.

Princeton has become an urban center for one of the fastest growing suburban areas in the country. Ned and John and Alice recognize the need for regional planning with surrounding municipalities to minimize the impact of their growth on Princeton. With almost ten thousand new housing units projected for Plainsboro and Griggstown in the next five years, the need for regional planning is vital. The Democrats know it and will do something about it.

The Democrats also know the desperate need for broader representation in Borough government. The present Democratic majority on Council has brought more people from all parts of the community onto local boards. The Democratic ticket is a balanced one. Elect Ned Schneider for Mayor and Mary Perone for Tax Collector. Re-elect John Strange and Alice Male to Borough Council. Your voices will be heard. They will represent all Princetonians.

Princeton needs a Democratic mayor to lead it; to coordinate actions with the Democratic majority on Borough Council. Ned Schneider is the man for the job.

The Rising Generation

The Rising Generation And The Law

By WILLIAM N. KIGHT

Perhaps no other concept in American culture has so universal an appeal as the appeal to law. Almost all patriotic references include some comment about law: "We are a nation of laws, not men!" "Equal Justice under law" etc. And yet for all its natural appeal, nowhere is the confrontation of the rising generation with the older generation greater than in its differences on the issue of law.

I believe there are several reasons for this. First, law is really a codifying of values. Whereas values are broad, general statements, laws are narrower, more specific interpretations. Obedience to the law hinges really on the acceptance of the value underlying it. Those underlying values are disputed by the rising generation who perceive a bankruptcy in the old values and question their relevance to modern life. Indeed, much of the struggle of the rising generation is in terms of seeking a stable relevant value structure. Without delving into the reasons for the questioning of values here, suffice it to say that when the underlying values are questioned, obedience to the law is not forthcoming.

But there is another side to this question. Those who are charged with enforcing the laws of society by and large hold to the values underlying the laws as well. So when a youth violates the law, he is not seen merely as an objective phenomenon to be dealt with, but rather as a very subjective threat to the enforcer's values and his personhood. The conflict is not merely one of law, but one of an assault on the very fabric of life. A similar thing often happens with parents, severing them from their children as a bolt of lightning severs a cloud only to force both sides together in a thunderous roar of conflict.

As serious as this crisis is, it pales somewhat in light of the second area of conflict which follows from the first: the way in which the Justice is meted out. When there was a consensus on values, the accused knew he had done wrong by his own standards, and therefore the punishment seemed somehow deserved. But for the youthful offender of today the law reduces itself in his view to a "might make right" role and in this context the convicted prisoner is not a criminal but a "political prisoner" — a victim as it were of the alien rule of society forced on him by its might and not a punishment meted out for his transgressing his own values. Seen in this light the notion of a penitentiary as a place where one does penance is absurd. Rather the role of the institution becomes one of helping the person adapt to a functioning life style which does not necessarily include his endorsement of societal values. For this to happen, a fundamental restructuring of penal institutions is needed.

The third area of conflict has to do with the manner in which law is enforced; and here we need to narrow our focus to Princeton. A contributing factor is the perception on the part of youth that the law does not abide by its own rules. Some of this is the inevitable consequence of the ambiguities of life: some violators seem never to be arrested while others may be lesser violators, are always being caught. Not much can be done about that perception; it was ever thus.

But other issues cannot be so easily dismissed: How does one respect a legal system when he watches all available local police run across the Princeton High School campus, scattering innocent youths like quail in order to arrest three youths on charges of possession of marijuana — does that sound like orderly process or law?

Or, how is a youth, not from Princeton, to view our system of justice when he spends three weeks in the Youth House because the Probation Department has misplaced his file and doesn't know what charge he is being held on?

Or, what of a Princeton youth languishing for over 30 days without so much as a preliminary hearing, and being told to wait another month because it seems inconvenient to produce the arresting officer for such a hearing — is he to view the law positively after his experience?

The point is not that one should attack the police or probation departments but that as the challenge to law that youth present increases, the legal system, even in Princeton, begins to collapse. If the society will not play by its own rules; its whole framework is but a house of cards.

The cry I raise is for some consistency between values and laws and their enforcement that can bring order and human consideration out of this chaos; from which respect can grow and the split between the rising generation and the older generation be bridged.

PEOPLE In The News

Two senior members of the Princeton University Faculty, Dr. William J. Baumol, 214 Western Way, the Green Professor of Economics, and Dr. Paul von Rague Schleyer, Newtown, Pa., the Eugene Higgins Professor of Chemistry, have recently been awarded honorary doctoral degrees by major European universities, according to reports received here this week.

Professor Baumol, the fourth distinguished economist to hold the Joseph Douglas Green '95 Professorship since its establishment in 1929 and a member of the Princeton Faculty since 1949, was honored by Stockholm University, while Professor Schleyer, widely known for his research and teaching in organic chemistry and a member of the Department of Chemistry since 1954, was cited by the University of Lyon.

Stockholm's citation for Professor Baumol, 49-year-old native of New York City, whose major publications include co-authorship (with Princeton Provost William G. Bowen) of "The Performing Arts — The Economic Dilemma," stressed the high regard of its School of Economics for "your fundamental and many-sided contributions to political economy and the economics of enterprise."

The "exceptional breadth" of Dr. Baumol's research interest was hailed in Stockholm. After emphasizing his significant contributions in "political economy and the economics of the firm," the citation noted that "you have extended your research beyond the bounds of these two fields of research, including work on economic theory for environmental protection and historical economic analysis of various forms of artistic performance."

At the ceremonies at Lyon, which concluded the observance of the centennial of the eminent French scientist, Victor Grignard, Professor Schleyer's career was summarized in these terms:

"After high school studies in Cleveland, Ohio, undergraduate and graduate studies at Princeton and Harvard Universities, respectively, Professor Schleyer rapidly attained a position of responsibility within Princeton University. At 41, he has already published more than 130 papers and contributed to several works on organic chemistry which are standard works in the field. He remains one of the most important pioneers of the 'non-classical ions' theory which is now recognized."

Dr. Alvin J. Salkind, 37 Dempsey Avenue, Princeton, N.J., has been named director of research for ESB Incorporated, formerly The Electric Storage Battery Company. In his new position, Dr. Salkind will be responsible for all activities of the ESB Research Center, Yardley, Pa. He was formerly manager of the electro-medical section at the Center.

A graduate of the chemical engineering doctoral program of The Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, class of 1958, Dr. Salkind retains his relationship with the university through his part-time activity as an adjunct professor of chemical engineering.

He is also a professor of bioengineering at Rutgers Medical School, chairman of the battery division of the Electrochemical Society, a member of the Association for Advancement of Medical Instrumentation and a Fellow at the American College of Cardiology.

Dr. Salkind joined ESB in 1958 as a senior scientist, and became a section leader in 1961 and retained that position until 1964 when he was made head of the electrochemistry laboratory. In 1970 he was named manager of electro-medical products.

John M. Mudge, 47 Van Wyck Drive, Princeton, N.J., has just been elected Vice President of A. C. Nielsen Company.

Mr. Mudge started as a field auditor in 1958 and was first assigned to Binghamton, New York. He was later transferred to New York City and promoted to District Manager in 1963. He entered New York Client Service in 1964 and was promoted to Account Executive four years later. Mr. Mudge is a graduate of the University of Virginia where he majored in economics.

Under the Chairmanship of Richard L. Gilbert Jr., 59 Shady Brook Lane, the Division of Fertilizer and Soil Chemistry of the American Chemical Society presented a three-day program of scientific papers at the Society's 162nd National meeting at Washington, D. C., Sept. 13-15.

Prominent in the program was a full day symposium on World Food Problems, at which speakers discussed some of the accomplishments of the "Green Revolution," and some of the secondary problems arising from it. New processes for fertilizer production were featured in a half-day symposium.

Mr. Gilbert, group leader of Phosphate and Nitrogen Research at American Cyanamid Co.'s Agricultural Center at Princeton, is a graduate of Cornell University. Before moving to Princeton in 1962, Mr. Gilbert was employed at Cyanamid's Central Research Laboratories at Stamford, Conn.

In community affairs, Mr. Gilbert has been active on the Budget Committee of the Princeton United Fund, and has tutored for the Princeton Study Center.

Airman Charles T. McKee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McKee, 62 Gulick Road, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex. He has been assigned to Presidio of Monterey, Calif., for training as a language specialist. Airman McKee, a 1966 graduate of Princeton High School, attended MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Ill.

NEW GROUP PLANNED

By YWCA. A new group, the Junior Friends of the Princeton YWCA, is being organized. No special invitation is necessary; age is the only requirement.

All women 35 years of age or under are welcome to attend one or both of the organizing meetings to be held Wednesday, October 13, at 8 p.m. in the evening and Thursday, October 14, at 10:00 a.m. The group will meet in the Lounge at the YM-YWCA Building.

The purpose of the Junior Friends is to foster friendship among its members and to indicate their interest in the purpose and program of the YWCA. A brief history of the national and local organization of the YWCA will be presented, followed by open discussion of what members of the Junior Friends can do either singly, or as a group.

For further information, interested people can call Mrs. James Blair 921-8005 or Mrs. Robert Weiss 799-0214, co-chairman.

Folk Dancing Friday. YWCA will present the second evening of International Folk Dancing this coming Friday from 7:30 p.m. until 9:30 p.m. at the Y. The group is led by Leo Arons, teacher of International Folk Dancing and student of ethnic dance. There is an adult fee, as well as a special rate for students through high school.

Bridge on Wednesdays "Novice Bridge for Fun" will become a feature of Wednesday evening programming at the

This new, weekly activity group is being started because of the expressed interest of a number of women to play bridge in the evening.

A leader will assist the group in learning the fundamentals of contract bridge and duplicate bridge. A small fee per evening will be charged; to participate a woman does not need to attend weekly, nor does she have to come with a partner.

ETS SEEKS INFANTS

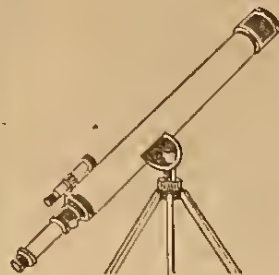

To Participate in Study. The Infant Laboratory of Educational Testing Service is seeking infants three months old or younger to take part in a study concerned with relating the behavior of infants during the early months of life to their later behavior.

Dr. Michael Lewis, director of the laboratory, said infants taking part in the study will be brought to ETS by their mothers for two one-hour visits. Psychologists at the laboratory will observe the infant's reaction to sounds, lights, pictures, and study his reflexes.

All mothers who cooperate with the study will be compensated and transportation to and from ETS will be provided if necessary, he said.

Hopes are, Dr. Lewis said, that this investigation will lead to significant discoveries about the relation of infant behavior to later intellectual functioning and personality development.

Infants who will be three months old within the next month or two are welcomed. Any mother who would like to participate in the study is urged to write to Dr. Michael Lewis, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J. 08540, or telephone 921-9000, extension 2559.

take place. This marks the second year the Legionnaires have selected a suburban area for their parade.

Several bands will be in the line of march plus other veteran organizations, fire companies, government officials and civic organizations. Mel Dempster, past commander of Hightstown Post 148 and Frank Tylus of Princeton Post 76, County vice-commander, are co-chairmen.

PHS STUDENT EMPLOYED

As Law Enforcement Trainee. As far as can be determined, Princeton High School senior Don Crosby is the first law enforcement trainee ever employed by the Borough police.

Don, a resident of Plainsboro and the leading pitcher on the school's baseball team for the past two years, is a member of the Co-Industrial Education Program at the high school which is state sanctioned. Under the program, a student attends class in the morning and goes out in the field in the afternoon.

John Post, the teacher in charge of the program at PHS, talked with Lt. Michael Carnevale and reported that Don had an interest in law enforcement.

"We're very proud to have him," Lt. Carnevale said. In addition to receiving valuable police-related experience, Don is paid for his training on an hourly rate.

Don will have no general police duties but will be involved in police-related tasks such as accident surveys. Right now he is assisting Det. Thomas Procaccino in a bike registration program being conducted by Borough police among school children.

Lt. Carnevale commented that it was gratifying to have a high school student say he was interested in law enforcement at a time when law enforcement is being viewed as an undesirable profession by a majority of students and young men.

DR. SHENSTONE HONORED

With Optical Society Award. Dr. Allen G. Shenstone, 111 Mercer Street, Senior Research Physicist and Class of 1909 Professor of Physics, Emeritus, at Princeton University, who is a world authority in the field of atomic spectroscopy, has been singled out for the highest honor in the field, the 1971 William F. Meggers Award of the Optical Society of America.

In recognition of his analyses of atomic spectra, particularly his work on autoionization, Professor Shenstone, 78-year-old native of Toronto, Canada, will receive the award Wednesday evening, October 6, in Ottawa, Canada, at the Optical Society's Annual Meeting. The Meggers Award honors the memory of the eminent scientist who for 44 years served science and his country in the Spectroscopy Section of the National Bureau of Standards.

A member of the Princeton Faculty for 37 years and Chairman of the Department of Physics from 1949 until 1960, Professor Shenstone retired in 1962 but continued his research here under grants from the National Science Foundation.

He had been called to Princeton in 1925 as an Assistant Professor, was promoted through the ranks to Professor and in 1938 was named first incumbent of the Class of 1909 Professorship.

Professor Shenstone, the only Canadian to enter Princeton with the Class of 1914 and a hockey teammate of Hobey Baker, a "legend" in the annals of American ice hockey, served with distinction in both World Wars.

A combat veteran of World War I, during which he received the Military Cross and participated in most of the major battles on the British front, he was in World War II Special Assistant to the President of the National Research Council of Canada, first as liaison officer between the Council and American scientific organizations and subsequently in a similar capacity, residing in London, as liaison officer between the Council and British scientific organizations.

NEW BIDS SOUGHT

For Pool Lights. The Princeton Recreation Board is seeking new bids to install underwater and outside lights which will permit night swimming at the Community Park pools.

Planning Associates, which served as consultants for the original construction, is scheduled to have new specifications ready by October 1, according to Jack Roberts, assistant recreation director. The estimated costs for the lights is about $25,000. Lighting for the 15 tennis courts is not included.

WINTER HOURS IN EFFECT

At Rocky Hill Library. Winter hours are now in effect at the Rocky Hill Library: Monday through Friday, 3:30 to 5; Tuesday and Thursday, 7 to 9 p.m.; and Friday and Saturday, 10 to 12 noon.

Story time for pre-kindergarten through third grade will be held Thursdays from 3:45 to 4:15 on October 7 and 21, November 4 and 18, and December 2 and 16.

The library is located at 62 Washington Street. It is open to all residents of Rocky Hill and Montgomery Township.

RABIES CLINIC PLANNED

For Borough, Township. The Boards of Health of the Borough and Township will hold free rabies vaccination clinics from 4 to 6 p.m. October 11-15 at the Community Park Swimming Pool.

All dogs must be inoculated against rabies within the six months preceding the date of the filing for a dog license. Only dogs accompanied by an adult will be inoculated. Dogs must be accompanied by an adult, not a child, to be inoculated.

CHINESE TO BE TAUGHT

To Area Children. The Chinese Language School, sponsored by the Princeton University Chinese Student Club, will begin its fall semester this Saturday at 10 a.m. in Jones Hall on the University campus.

Children 6 to 14 are taught Mandarin two hours a week. Tuition is $35 per semester. Twenty-four students are enrolled in four classes this year.

Parents interested in more information about the school may call Mrs. Patsy Lam at 924-2191.

TIMELY TOPICS SET

For Adult School Lectures. Both of the lectures of the Adult School this Thursday, are immediate in their interest. The 8 p.m. series on Technology and Society will be entitled "Technology And National Security," and the guest speaker will be Professor Marvin L. Goldberger. tary profile are being discussed. Professor Goldberger has been a consultant to the federal government for many years on these and related subjects.

The Nature of the City series at 9 p.m. will deal with "Belfast: A Divided City." A city in the middle of civil war once again that might trigger off a much larger battlefront will be discussed by J. Kenneth Mitchell of Rutgers University. Mr. Mitchell graduated from Queens' University of Belfast in 1966 and has first hand knowledge of the continuing strife between the Catholics and the Protestants in Northern Ireland and its implications for all of the British Isles.

LOSES LICENSE, FINED

For Drunk Driving. David T. White, 58, 135 John Street, was fined $210 and had his license revoked for two years last week in Borough Court for drunken driving. He pleaded guilty.

A second Borough resident scheduled for a hearing before Judge Theodore T. Tams Jr., John W. Ware, 56, 98 Birch Avenue, failed to appear. He, too, has been charged with drunken driving.

CAN LIGHTNING STRIKE TWICE? Because John Blackton of Center Stationers last year picked both divisional winners and the ultimate World Series victor in the correct number of games, TOWN TOPICS felt he earned another chance to see if he could do it again. For his series' choices this year, see below. (Staff Photo)

Question Of The Week

Question: What two teams do you think will wind up in the World Series, and which one do you think will win and in how many games?

Where asked: Around town.

John Blackton, Trenton, manager of Center Stationers, Princeton Shopping Center: I think Oakland will beat San Francisco in the Series in five games. Oakland is well rested. Their pitchers worked only five innings, whether they were ahead or not. They're all rested and ready to go. Baltimore tried to be a hero and get every one in the 20-game bracket. They're all tired. Pitching will definitely decide it. Blue should win at least two. I pick Oakland to beat Baltimore in four games and the Giants in three over Pittsburgh. In the two games he pitched against Baltimore, Blue gave up only four hits in each game, winning the first 2-0, and the second, 2-1. The Giants are so well relaxed now they should go on a tear.

Joe Baldino, 511 Ewing St., employee R.F. Johnson: Baltimore and Pittsburgh. Baltimore should win it in five on better pitching—much better pitching. It doesn't do any good to have a .300 hitter if you don't have the pitching. Pittsburgh doesn't have the pitching.

Dave Brewer, Levittown, manager of Zinder's: I know who I'd like to see win it, but... No! I want Mays in there. The Giants are due. They've been bridesmaids but never a bride too long. I'll go with the Giants all the way—seven games over Baltimore in the Series. If I were betting, I'd pick Baltimore but I really think the Giants will do it. I think both playoffs will go the full five games.

Gerald Bramwell, Bayard Lane: Baltimore and Pittsburgh will be in the series and I say Baltimore will win it in six. When you have four 20-game winners, it is almost inconceivable you could lose—along with two Robinsons. Boy!

Jack O'Neill, Spring Street, Borough meter mechanic: Baltimore and Pittsburgh. I think Baltimore will win in a seven-game Series. They have much better pitching—four 20-game winners, and a lot more World Series experience than Pittsburgh.

Hoge Woolwine, Skillman, owner of Nassau Hobby and Crafts: The Giants and Baltimore.

more. The Orioles will take it in seven games unless the Giants start to fall. If the Giants fade, they'll lose four in a row. No question Baltimore has the edge in pitching but I think it will be a hitting series. It should be an exciting series—lots of pitching and hitting with McCovey and Mays. I don't think Pittsburgh has the hitting to pull it out against the Giants.

John Rohillard, Pennington, clerk at Community Liquors: Baltimore in six or seven games over Pittsburgh. Baltimore has the pitching; I don't see how they can be beaten. Pittsburgh has a lot of power hitters but I still don't see how they can take the Orioles in a short series.

Eric May, Levittown, manager of The Fabric Center, 25 Witherspoon St.: I think Baltimore will win again, probably in six games over San Francisco. Baltimore has better balance than the Giants—more power better pitching. They've got good balance, as I've said from the beginning. They'll beat Oakland but it will go the full five games. Whoever wins the first will have the edge and I think Baltimore will win the first.

Edward Cifelli, Harrison Street, owner of Rialto Barber Shop: Pittsburgh and Baltimore, with Pittsburgh taking the Series in six. I think the Pirates have the better hitting lineup and the pitching isn't that bad. Of course Baltimore has the pitching—Cuelar, McNally and Palmer have done an excellent job—but I think Pittsburgh will win this time. I definitely think the National League is stronger than the American.

Tom Brophy, Lawrence Township, owner of Brophy Shoes: Pittsburgh and Baltimore. Baltimore will win, probably in five. Pittsburgh has only two half decent pitchers. When they throw four 20-game winners at you, as Baltimore can, you can't go against those guns without coming out second best. Plus, Baltimore had a better defense. No way Pittsburgh can win.

Ed Babarsky, Spring Street, barman at Rosso's Cafe: Baltimore in five games over the Giants. Better hitting and pitching.

William Bowser, Hightstown, manager of frame department, Gallery 100: Baltimore and Pittsburgh will wind up in the series and I pick the Birds to win it in six games. Pittsburgh has some good hitters but Baltimore has too much pitching. Pittsburgh will win the first game but Baltimore will win all the rest, or four of the next five.

Jeremy Lewis, New Brunswick, employee of Nassau Broadcasting Company: I should stick with Oakland out of sheer sentimentality but in a money bet I'll pick Baltimore in six over Pittsburgh. Too much depth all around. Too much hitting, too much pitching—and the Pirates don't look like the former Mets.

Perfect Prognosticators

Nick The Greek will have to make room for John Blackton of Center Stationers and Joe Baldino of R.F. Johnson; they're in his league when it comes to predicting the outcome of sporting events.

Both men named the Baltimore Orioles and Cincinnati Reds last year to win their divisional playoffs against the Minnesota Twins and Pittsburgh Pirates and both then predicted Baltimore would win the World Series. Each also picked the Birds in five games, which is the way it happened—and you can't hat any higher than that.

Harry Wyckoff of Ballot's and postal carrier Dave Britton also picked Baltimore in five, but over Pittsburgh.

Ken Samuel, Leigh Avenue, Princeton University proctor: Pittsburgh should take it all in six games over Baltimore. Pittsburgh's hitting and Willie Stargel will be too much.

Willie Hill, Princeton University proctor: Pittsburgh and Baltimore. Even though I'm a National Leaguer, I think Baltimore will win in five games. Baltimore has the better balanced team all around—better pitching, hitting and defense.

George McGowan, John St.: I think Pittsburgh will take Baltimore because of its better hitting. It should go at least five.

FIRST ONE FOR COLUMBIA: Kevin English, Princeton defensive halfback, got to the ball in the end zone first but when he merely batted it into the air, Columbia end Mike Jones grabbed it for a touchdown. Lions' 22-20 victory was their first over Tigers in 26 years.

Troubled Tiger Eleven in for More at Ithaca

Princeton football is in trouble. Deep trouble — the kind which may very possibly result in a season no better than 2-7 and then continue to bog down Tiger teams in second division in the Ivy League for two or three more years.

This current squad is a senior-dominated unit, one whose problems are traceable in great degree to players in their third year on the varsity. Unlike a team depending largely on sophomores whose mistakes are gradually erased by experience, this is a group of veterans who appear wholly unlikely to shake the errors and the thinking that has cost them defeats by two quite ordinary opponents.

At the moment, it will be an upset of considerable proportions if they defeat either Cornell or Colgate. If they do not, they will become the first Princeton team in history to lose their first four. History around here now goes back over 100 years.

How much of the remainder of the season could be salvaged after such a start is difficult to estimate now, but off the caliber of play so far, there is little reason for long-range optimism. Compounding the situation is the freshman story: with a squad of around 45 players, the Class of 1975 does not have sufficient manpower to hold scrimmages two deep. Football personnel, both in depth and in top quality, is not matriculating at Princeton in the early years of the '70s.

urday, one which may squeeze into first division by season's end but is by no means a likely contender for the championship. Princeton made many of the same grievous errors it had in the one-sided loss to Rutgers. What was worse, while the defense continued to tackle ineptly and to cover passes in grossly disorganized fashion, the offense failed to achieve the promise of balance it had shown against Rutgers.

After gaining 307 yards in the loss to Rutgers, quarterback Rod Plummer was 1 for 5 and 11 yards in the first half against the Lions. The real problem, however, was the fact that an underthrown pass into the flat had been picked off by a Columbia defender and run back 56 yards for the victors' second touchdown.

Despite his success against Rutgers, Plummer apparently lost confidence in the Tigers' aerial game and on the final 19 plays which Princeton put in motion in the second quarter, did not throw once. At the end of the day, he was 8 for 16 and 107 yards, but almost entirely because the home team had gone into a prevent defense with 1:30 left and the Tigers completed five passes which the Lions did not contest. Columbia allowed the receptions by playing deep, making sure of the tackle to prevent the bomb.

On the ground, Princeton ran for 292 yards — largely because Hank Bjorklund had one of his fine days as he was time thing this season, it is the total lack of take-charge ability of the veteran defensive unit that has Princeton in such deep trouble. So many errors of commission and omission are its members making that in all likelihood not even the players themselves could explain why they are executing their assignments so ineptly.

Columbia's first touchdown was scored on a near carbon copy of one that Rutgers made: defensive halfback Kevin English got his hands on a pass in the end zone but when he batted it upwards, it came down into the hands of the Lions' tight end, Mike Jones. Columbia's winning touchdown was created by the Tigers' most glaring oversight. On a fourth and seven situation from the Princeton 24, quarterback Don Jackson threw into the end zone to halfback John Sefcik. As he caught the ball, there was no Princeton defender within ten yards of him.

One other characteristic of this Princeton team is also regrettable. Its players are cantankerous — drawing personal fouls that have an unfortunate appearance in the stands and can only harm the efforts of their teammates to win.

In the final minutes of the fourth quarter at New York, with the score 22-20 and Princeton seeking desperately to gain possession of the ball, the whistle blew as the referee prepared to pace off a five-yard delay of game penalty against the Lions.

Even without actual contact, however, defensive end Steve Sikora got into a hassle with a Columbia lineman and was ejected from the game. The penalty against Princeton nullified Columbia's and made the Tigers' task in a losing cause just that much harder.

Missed Opportunities. The Tigers had at least as many chances to win as they themselves gave away. The first came very early in the opening period, when linebacker Joe Parsons recovered a Columbia fumble on the Lions' 29. However, Plummer could complete only one of four attempted passes and the drive to a quick score fizzled after gaining only four yards.

In the final period, another march died within striking distance, the combined result of a costly clipping penalty and more incomplete passes. Then, after Walt Snickenberger got the third Princeton TD to narrow the gap to 22-20, Plummer was hit from behind while trying to pass for the two-point conversion that would have tied the score.

In the dying moments, the clock showed six seconds left when John Bartges tried a 32-yard field goal which would have won for Princeton by a point. He stubbed his toe, and the ball barely crossed the goal line, sealing Columbia's first victory over the Tigers at Baker Field since 1932.

CORNELL OFFENSE SOLID

With Arrival of Quarterback. For two years, Ed Marinaro, Cornell All-American, has run through defenses stacked against him because the Ithacans lacked a good quarterback who could open them up. In Palmer Stadium last fall, the Red attack was so much of a one-man gang that Princeton managed to keep Marinaro from crossing the goal line, although he did gain 206 yards during the afternoon. The final score in a game of three field goals was 6-3 for Cornell.

Now, sophomore Mark Allen is on the scene and can claim a 50 percent completion average in his first two games, although in the 31-17 triumph over Rutgers, he tossed only four because the Ithacans' running game was in control on a wet field. His ability as a passer, plus Marinaro's extreme skill as a ball carrier, have enabled the latter to average around 250 yards in the two victories over Colgate and Rutgers and to score four times in each of them.

Marinaro already holds virtually every rushing record in the Ivy book, despite the fact that he has played only two-thirds of his league career. He led the nation in per-game averages last year with 158.3 and seems certain to break the record of 3,867 for three years set by Steve Owens, now with the Detroit Lions. Owens was the Heisman Trophy winner in 1969 and Marinaro hopes to follow suit, which would make him the first Ivy Leaguer to achieve such status since Dick Kazmaier did just two decades ago.

With Allen and Marinaro in the backfield are Co-Captain Tom Albright, a capable runner and the team's top receiver

QUICK LOOK AT CORNELL

OFFENSE: Very probably Ivy League's best, with an improved passing game balancing Marinaro's extreme running ability. Ithacans' attack has averaged over 500 yards in first two games.

DEFENSE: Adequate but does not match offense. Lost enough by graduation so it still has major rebuilding problem.

CHIEF ASSET: Marinaro, already best ball carrier in Ivy League history and this year, possibly best in U.S.

CHIEF PROBLEM: Defense. While Cornell will go far this fall, it may have to score often to win.

TYPE OF OFFENSE: I Formation.

er in 1970, and fullback Bob Joehl, a solid blocking back and occasional ball carrier. The offensive line is good sized and experienced, assuring Cornell of solid attacking ability. A major asset, too, is bare-footed placekicker John Killian, who is accurate from 35 yards out.

Defensively, the Ithacans have had to rebuild enough from a team which had its problems in this respect last year so that Marinaro's presence is their best guarantee of a successful season. Colgate and Rutgers have totaled 37 points against them, and they do not figure to win by a shut-out against even the weaker teams on their schedule.

If Princeton were living up to the potential expected of it before the season began, Saturday's meeting—highlighting a running duel between Marinaro and Bjorklund — would have had all the earmarks of a 60-minute eye-popper. Under the depressed circumstances currently surrounding Tiger football, however, chances of a Princeton victory are truly slim, and the question more accurately will be the size of Cornell's victory margin.

PARENTS DAY SATURDAY

As Hun Meets George School. Hun School, 6-0 victor over Admiral Farragut last week in its home opener, will oppose George School here Saturday afternoon before a Parents Day crowd. Kickoff is 2:30.

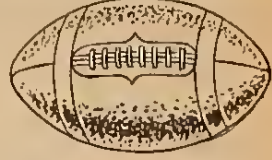

Hun coach Dave Leete reported that he knows very little about the George School squad other than that it defeated Germantown Friends, 18-12, in its last start.

Defense Excels. Defense, a hallmark of Hun's undefeated teams in the past years, reasserted itself Saturday in Hun's win over Admiral Farragut. It wasn't as overpowering as last year when Hun held Farragut to minus 64 yards and did not allow the Admirals a single first down, but it was solid enough to stop the visitors when they penetrated to the Hun 10 in the second quarter. That was as close as they were to get all afternoon. Leele singled out the defensive play of tackles George Harper and Don Cuddihee and ends Chuch Sista and Dennis Skrajewski. Cuddihee is a 6-1, 195-pound sophomore who was used for some duration for the first time, and Leele commented, "He played a real good game."

PLAY THAT WON THE GAME: Ewing's little (145 pounds) Mike Wilson is about to catch a pass over the outstretched arms of two PHS defenders and convert it into a 75-yard scoring play which broke a 6-6 tie. Play shifted momentum to Blue Devils who went on to defeat PHS, 20-6. (Staff Photo)

After a scoreless first half, Hun registered the game's only TD in the third quarter when quarterback Alan Chalifoux hit his halfback Pete Jones for a 40-yard strike. The running of Chalifoux was Hun's most effective offense. He also combined with fullback Sista for several short pass completions on the slippery field.

Hun was a distinctly different team than the one that lost 38-0 in its opener last week to Newark Academy. Leele observed, "We played good football. Farragut," Leele continued, "was a real tough team. I feel they were bigger and stronger than Newark Academy."

Hun forced the visitors to turnover the ball a half dozen times, four times on fumbles and twice on pass interceptions. Hun lost the ball twice on fumbles and had one of its passes picked off.

PHS AT TRENTON NEXT

Following Loss to Ewing, The Princeton High School football team, 0-2 after two home contests, will try to do better on the road when it travels to Trenton High School Saturday for a 2 p.m. contest. The Little Tigers will not play again at home until a November 6 meeting with Steinert.

Few people would have guessed that both PHS and Trenton would enter their contest winless. After being stung hard by the Hamilton Hornets in their opener, the Little Tigers were stung again Saturday, 20-6, by Ewing. As expected, Trenton, the defending Mercer County champions, lost to powerful Thomas Jefferson in its opener. Unexpected was the Tornadoes' 14-12 upset loss Saturday to St. Anthony's.

As a result, both teams must win if they hope to salvage the present season. On paper, PHS has too many guns for the inexperienced PHS team to handle. But this is an ancient rivalry and past scores have meant little.

In addition, the Little Tigers gave some signs, not as pronounced as coach Dick Wood would have liked, but signs nonetheless against Ewing that they are improving both on offense and defense. They still have a long way to go, especially on offense. "All in all, there are a lot of things we can work on," said Wood after the Ewing game. "They're not going to get easier, that's sure," he added.

One Play Decides. An example of one play being able to turn a game around occurred in the Ewing loss. After an even first half, which ended 6-6, PHS apparently had the Blue Devils safe in their own territory when, on a third and three, quarterback Jim Harvey tossed a short pass to his back, Mike Wilson. All alone when he caught the ball, Wilson spun away from a tackle and cannonballed down the sidelines. The play covered 75 yards.

After that, it was all downhill for the Little Tigers. They never threatened again. "The kids didn't mean to but they let down a little after that," Wood said.

First Half Even. Until then, the first half was evenly played on the muddy and slippery field. PHS had 137 yards of offense, 97 of them coming on five completions by tailback Joe McGuinn. Ewing had 128 yards, all but five of them rushing — and nearly all of those by its fine running back Don Henley who was to gain 139 yards in 27 carries. Both teams recorded six first downs.

Ewing scored first, going 67 yards in the second quarter. In successive plays, Henley carried from the Ewing 33 to the PHS 42, 23 and 10-yard line. In three more cracks at the line, Henley moved the ball to the five. On fourth and five, Harvey passed over the middle to Wilson who was wide open. It was the only pass Ewing threw in the first half. Fullback Bob Harter was stopped trying to run the extra point.

Princeton came right back, marching 62 yards to tie it. En route, McGuinn passed twice for first downs to wingback Tom Hofgesang, and again to Steve Sandford, who made a nice catch. Another pass, this one to end Gil Spencer carried to the Ewing two. From there McGuinn, behind nice blocking, carried the ball over.

As he did so, he tossed the pigskin in the air. It marked the first time that PHS, shut-out by Cherry Hill in its final game last year and by Hamilton in its opener, has scored in 10 quarters. PHS then missed a chance to take the lead when Hofgesang fumbled the snapback for kicker Ned Fry.

Ewing scored an insurance TD in the fourth period, marching 33 yards, following a

Sanford punt to the PHS 33. Henley took it in from four yards out on the first play after the four-minute sign was given. (The PHS electric scoreboard was inoperative for the second week in a row.)

The PHS defense, comprised for the most part of Bob Zinsmeister, McGuinn, Sanford and Wel Hines in the backfield and Frank Capom, Tony Federico, Bart Harris, Bill Alexander, Arlice Hines, Bob Weisbecker and Hyette Briscoe had displayed a marked improvement. There was spirit and determination. But those two pass plays...

For the second week, PHS had to go without two starters. Offensive end Chris Graziel is sidelined with pulled tendons in the leg and center Ray Richards is recovering from inflammation of the hip bone.

PDS SEEKS FIRST WIN
Against Morristown Friday.
Badly in need of some offensive punch, the Princeton Day football team will still be looking for its first victory Friday when it meets Morristown Prep at home at 2 p.m. The teams have met twice previously in 1967 and 1968, with Morristown winning both. The Panthers have yet to put a point on the scoreboard after two defeats, the latest coming at the hands of the King School, 24-0, last Saturday in Stamford, Connecticut.

It's been a tough start for the Blue and White, which saw most of its offense lost through graduation and the transfer of Peter McCandless to Andover. Coach George Conway has had to work with an entirely new backfield, composed of three starting linemen from last year's team and a soccer goalie turned quarterback.

Signal caller Dave Wagenseil will gain in poise and experience as the season goes on, as will backs Rob Gips, Paul Funk and co-captain Kirk Moore, who did play his sophomore year in the backfield. Better blocking in the line will also aid their efforts.

Against King School, PDS gave up four points on two safeties, one when a ball carrier was tackled in the end zone, another on a blocked punt. The first safety opened the scoring for King, which then went on to rack up six more points on a two-yard run, capping a 65-yard drive. A two-point conversion made it 9-0.

A 27-yard touchdown pass gave the home team a 16-0 lead, and the second safety made it 18-0 at halftime. Both teams tied in the second half after King's final score in the third period, coming on a 17-yard run.

TENNIS TOURNEY SET
For November 6. The Third Annual Somerset County Open

Indoor Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Somerville Area Jaycees, has been scheduled for Saturday, November 6 at the Nassau Racquet and Tennis Club, Route 206. There will be men's singles and doubles, and women's singles events. An entry fee of $5 will be required for singles and $8.00 for doubles teams. Silver bowls will be awarded to winners and runners-up in all events.

The Club has six indoor courts using a synthetic rug surface which plays like clay. There is a large viewing area above the base line where spectators may watch the action.

All proceeds will go to the Somerville Area Jaycees youth and sports program. The purpose of the youth and sports program is to develop leadership and character through competitive sports. Anyone interested in entering the tournament should contact tournament chairman, Jack Nuckols, 32 Woodmere Street, Raritan, New Jersey, (201) 526-0329.

TENNIS CENTER OPEN
At Mercer County. The Mercer County Indoor Tennis Center is now open for the 1971-72 season.

Reservations for open courts can be made by calling 883-5768. Mercer County residents may call 72 hours in advance; non-residents may call 48 hours in advance for an open court.

TENNIS CLUB TO OPEN
Reservations Now Possible. The Nassau Racquet and Tennis Club is now accepting reservations for courts for the indoor tennis season. Located just north of Princeton on Route 206, the new club features six specially-developed Boltex-surfaced indoor courts and will have ten outdoor courts ready for warm-weather play next spring.

Organized, designed and built by a group of Princeton area tennis players, the club offers conveniences to suit beginners and tournament-class players alike, including carpeted locker rooms, sauna, tiled showers, pro shop, boutique and a supervised nursery.

A full-range of instruction will be available for all degrees of playing skill. Instruction, developmental programs and tournaments for the younger set are planned. Consciousness I furniture from Cane Farm

The pioneer spirit is not merely alive; it thrives, in the spirited early American creations and re-creations at Cane Farm.

How did you get the most warmth from a walk in fireplace? You cuddled right up to it in a settle, that's how. The high back kept the heat from getting past you, so you got the most good from the least fuel. The original of this settle (late 1600's) is in the Metropolitan Museum. You can fill a foyer wall with our re-creation. It's 51" wide, 64½" high.

Dry sink. Once a necessity, now a simple delight. We make them a dozen different ways. This one's Dutch. Yours can be any style you want.

IAC BLANKED 26-0

Ivy Wins In Flag Football. I's offense stalled out because of several dropped passes, the Harrison Athletic Club went down to a 26-0 defeat at the hands of the Ewing Giants last Sunday in the Mercer County Flag Football League.

However, the other Princeton team Ivy Inn pulled out a 20-18 triumph over Big Johns. The margin of victory came on a two-point conversion with the score tied 18-18 in the fourth quarter. Bruce Sandvik passed to Billy Cirullo for the winning points. He completed touchdown passes to Tony Bocciafuso, Billy Bartolino and Bill Pierson.

This Sunday IAC will meet Joe and Lena's at Community Park field, while Ivy will travel to Moody Park in Trenton to take on Jo-Jo's. Both games begin at 11 a.m.

TENNIS TITLE WON

In West Windsor. Dr. Walter Cravin, recovered from a shoulder operation which kept him off the courts for six months, won the West Windsor Recreation Department men's tennis singles blue division championship.

Cravin, showing no shoulder problems, had just a little extra in defeating Ken Syberg, 6-3, 6-4, in the championship match. In advancing to the finals, Cravin had defeated Dave Singer, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4; Bob Edelblut, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3; and Jay Sexton, 7-5, 6-4. Syberg had reached the finals with wins over Ted Peck, 6-4, 6-2 and Jack Baer, 6-1, 6-2.

In earlier matches, Singer conquered Ed Jordi, 6-4, 6-3 and Herb Horowitz 6-4, 4-6, 7-6; Jordi defeated Bob Neilsen, 6-2, 6-3; Peck overcame Bob Duncan, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6; Duncan beat Jay Cassen 6-4, 6-3; and Edelblut overcame Bill Christensen 6-4, 6-3.

The tournaments continue this weekend with competition in the women's singles and the men's doubles.

TENNIS TOURNEY SET

For Early November. The third annual Somerset County Open Indoor Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Somerville Area Jaycees, will begin November 6 at the Nassau Racquet and Tennis Club on Route 206. Men's singles and doubles and women's singles are scheduled.

All proceeds will go to the Somerville Area Jaycees youth and sports program, held to develop leadership and character through competitive sports. Those interested in entering the tournament should contact tournament chairman, Jack Nuckols, 32 Woodmere Street, Raritan (201 526-0329).

PHS WINS PAIR

In Cross Country. Princeton High School's cross country team has upped its record to 3-1 with a pair of victories over Trenton and Hun School.

The Little Tigers just nipped Trenton on Monday, 27-28, Roland Smith of PHS capturing first over the 2.5 mile course with a clocking of 12:44. Mark Hoffman (12:54) was second. Trenton swept the next three places.

Against Hun, Smith and Hoffman also finished first and second as they led PHS to a 20-40 victory. Tom Snow of PHS was third with a 14:05 effort.

The PHS jayvee team also won against the same two teams, defeating Trenton, 24-39 and Hun, 15-50. George Fish of PHS captured first place in both meets. His best time was 14:18 against Trenton.

TOWNSHIP WINS SHOOTOUT

With Borough Police. Since 1963, Borough and Township police have been competing against each other for possession of the Ellis-Harris pistol trophy—named for two Princeton patrolmen who lost their lives in police service.

One side must win three years in a row to earn permanent possession, and this year the Borough police, victors the past two years, seemed to have the guns to pull it off. Township marksmen spoiled the Borough's bid, however, by outshooting their rivals, 1354 to 1308.

Shooting for the Township were Sgt. Lester Anderson (272), Det. Anthony Pinelli (264), Sgt. Anthony Nini (274) the Township team captain, Lt. Michael Lisi (269) and Ptl. James Vandermark (275).

For the Borough, Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm (289) the Borough captain, Sgt. John Bellow (278), Ptl. Arthur Jackson (263), Ptl. Douglas Watson (280) and Ptl. William Hunter (198).

The Township, in fact, won not only the Ellis-Harris Trophy but the "A" team trophy, the "B" team trophy and the Mayors trophy. The latter includes competition with both departments and West Windsor police. It was a Township sweep.

"It was our most gratifying win," commented Sgt. Nini. "My men are pressure shooters and when the pressure is there, they will come out on top," said Township Chief Fred Porter. "The Township plans to retain these trophies for the next three years at which time they will have a final resting place."

Borough police tried a little Brinksmanship in the Ellis-Harris shooting and may have succeeded only in outsmarting themselves. All shooting took place Saturday at the Citizens' Pistol and Rifle Club on Princeton-Hightstown Road.

The Township had all its men shoot at once. The Borough, however, held up after its first three men shot to find out how many points it needed. It averaged out to 261 a man. Wilhelm selected Sgt. Bellow next who shot a 278. That left it squarely up to Ptl. Hunter who had earlier shot a 262 in the A competition.

The pressure told. Hunter fell from a 262 and 10 bullets to 198 and three bullets. "They tried to put the pressure on us, but all they did was outsmart themselves," said a Township patrolman.

Ptl. Wilhelm came in second for individual top score honors with a 291 out of a possible 300. Sgt. Anderson of the Township was third with 289. Renato R. Carazzai of the Citizens Club was first with 293.

The same five who shot for the Ellis-Harris trophy competed in the A team match, which the Township won, 1404 to 1378. Anderson and Pinelli both shot 289s for the Township. Anderson getting six more bullseyes, 18-12. Nini had 282, Lisi 275 and Vandermark, who had shot a perfect 300 at the Sea Girt police training school, 269. Wilhelm, Bellow, Jackson, Watson and Hunter shot 291, 281, 280, 264 and 262 for the Borough.

The B team was comprised of the second five best shooters from each department. The Township won this one, 1240 to 1183. Shooting for the

September's Clouds Have Moved Away (October's May Be Here To Stay!)

Thought September was kind of cloudy, did you? Well, you were absolutely right.

September had only a 41% rate of "possible sunshine" — the lowest percentage since weathermen first began keeping sunshine records here, back in 1913. The records come from the U.S. Weather Bureau in Trenton.

The 41% means that out of 100 minutes of possible sunshine during the day, the sun shone only 41 minutes. It's recorded on a pyroheliometer, an instrument like a photo-electric cell which measures the amount of time the sun creates an impulse on the machine.

Rainfall was surprising — it only rained eight of September's 30 days, despite what you may have thought. Measurable rainfall has to total at least one one-hundredth of an inch to be considered a measurable "trace".

Cloudy days in September are responsible for the lack of autumn color. It's already past the first week in October, yet trees still wear a late-summer look.

Autumn color comes because the leaves are aging and losing green chlorophyll, and as any film star can tell you, dryness and sun hasten the aging process. An abnormally low amount of sunshine and the dampness of clouds mean more youthful, and therefore greener, leaves.

Last time anybody looked up at the sky, through October's bright green leaves, it looked as though October might follow September in low "possible sunshine."

VISIBLE PROGRESS: Pleased with construction progress at Princeton Hospital's million-dollar Emergency Department complex, John W. Kaniffman (left) the Hospital's executive vice-president, points out a feature of the new unit to George W. Conover, chairman of the Annual Fund Appeal now in progress. Goal of this year's campaign is $450,000, with $325,000 earmarked for the emergency project.

The reason was simple: someone had removed his $32 battery while he was at work.

HOSPITAL SEEKS FUNDS For New Construction

George W. Conover, campaign chairman, has issued an urgent appeal for all-out support of Princeton Hospital's annual fund-raising drive, terming success "vital to the long-range emergency health care needs of our community." Mr. Conover, a former president of the Hospital's Board of Trustees, announced a goal of $450,000, with $325,000 of this sum allocated to a new million-dollar Emergency Department complex now under construction.

"When this ultra-modern facility opens its doors to the public next spring, we will be able to meet the ever-increasing emergency care requirements of our service area," he said. "Last year, 24,000 men, women and children used the Emergency Department. We estimate this number will reach 35,000 by 1975. Our existing set-up is simply not geared to handle this mushrooming need."

"Last spring, the Hospital Trustees authorized the immediate start of new Emergency Department construction, fully confident that all segments of our community, industry, small business and the general public would respond generously to our annual appeal. Today, our 1971-72 fund-raising drive is under way. We earnestly ask for your all-out support and backing," Mr. Conover concluded.

Edward (Ned) Schneier is a six year resident of Princeton. He, his wife, Jan, and their two red-headed children live on Jefferson Road. Ned first came to Princeton as an assistant professor at Princeton University. He is now on the faculty of CCNY as an associate professor of political science. Ned was a co-founder of the Movement for a New Congress, President of the Princeton Community Democratic Organization and a Legislative Assistant to Senator Birch Bayh. A homeowner, he shares your concern about taxes. That's why he's organized a task force to study the municipal budget. To make sure your money is being spent wisely. As a bicycle rider he wants paths as an alternate means of transportation as well as for recreation. As a person he wants to do something about crime, drugs, housing, transportation, ecology, regional planning — to work for people, young, middle, old. Princeton's concerns are yours, they are Ned's. Obituaries

William H. Jackson, 70, of Tucson, Ariz., formerly of Princeton, died September 23 in Tucson after a long illness. He was former deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Born in Nashville, Mr. Jackson was graduated from St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass., in 1920. He received a B.A. from Princeton in 1924 and an LL.B. from Harvard Law School in 1928. He joined the New York law firm of Cadwalader, Wickersham and Taft in 1928 and moved to Carter, Ledyard & Milburn in 1930, becoming a partner four years later.

He had a long career in intelligence work, beginning in February 1942, when he was assigned as a captain to the Army Air Force Intelligence School in Harrisburg, Pa. This was followed by antisubmarine service and assignment to intelligence units. He joined the intelligence section of American Military Headquarters in London in 1944, serving as intelligence chief to General Jacob L. Devers and later as deputy chief of intelligence for Gen. Omar Bradley.

Discharged in August, 1945, as a colonel, he joined his law firm, leaving it two years later to become a partner in the John Hay Whitney investment firm. In 1949 he was back in intelligence and was named to the National Security Council to serve on a committee with Allen W. Dulles and Mathias F. Correa to investigate the United States intelligence service. He became deputy director of the CIA, serving under Lieut. Gen. Walter B. Smith.

In the early 1950's President Eisenhower appointed him head of a committee to study how to mount psychological warfare to give it "a dynamic thrust in the cold war." Mr. Jackson, in his report, stated that "psychological strategy" does not exist as an independent medium. His committee recommendation was an operations coordinating board within the National Security Council. The unit was formed with a mission to plan detailed operations for carrying on not mere propaganda or psychological warfare but definite national-security policies.

Mr. Jackson married twice. In 1929 Elizabeth Lyman and in 1951 Mary Lee Pitcairn. Both marriages ended in divorce. He is survived by two sons of the first marriage, William H. and Richard L., and two sons of the second marriage, Bruce P. and Howell E., and four grandchildren. The service will be held in Nashville on Friday or Saturday.

Mrs. Ruth J. Serrell, 65 of 39 Lovers Lane, died September 29 at her home. She was the wife of Robert Serrell.

Also surviving are a son, David of Boston, and a granddaughter.

The service was held in New Brunswick. Interment was in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Victor E. Sabary, 57, of 436 North Harrison Street, died September 29 after a brief illness. A retired commander in the United States Naval Reserves, he was a former sales representative for the Luzerne Rubber Company of Trenton.

Mr. Sabary was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1936. He served on destroyer escorts on the North Atlantic convoy routes during World War II and was a member of the Naval Industrial Board in Washington during the Korean War. He was a member of the Dartmouth Club of Southern New Jersey and of the American Legion Post 76.

He was the son of the late Dr. Victor E. Sabary, language teacher at Trenton High School, and the late Eleanor P. Sabary, professor of Music at Trenton State. Several cousins are his nearest survivors.

The service was held in Trenton, with interment in Ewing Cemetery.

Mrs. Dagay Olsen, 79, of Honeyman Road, Griggstown, died October 1 in the Sunnyfield Nursing Home, Cranbury. She was the widow of Ole L. Olsen.

Born in Norway, Mrs. Olsen lived in Griggstown most of her life. There are no known survivors.

The service was held in the Mather Funeral Home, the Rev. Stanley Bugge of Bunker Hill Lutheran Church officiating. Interment was in Griggstown Cemetery.

Andreas Hustad, 83, of Forest Avenue, Griggstown, died September 30 in Princeton Hospital. He retired in 1957 as a marine engineer after 40 years service in the Merchant Marine.

A Griggstown resident during most of his life, Mr. Hustad was a member of the Sons of Norway.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Johanna A. Hustad; a brother in Newark and two sisters in Norway.

Before modern clocks were invented, water clocks were in wide use, as far back as 159 B.C. They consisted of glass jars with scale markings on the side. As the water ran out, time was calculated by the water left in the jar.

We can not offer such a clock, but we do have watches that will run in a jar filled with water. Why not come in and view our collection.

Your Present Township Committee At Work! Princeton Township Opens The Door

"Too many New Jersey communities, in the name of 'home rule,' have zoned themselves out of the market for low and middle-income families. That means that many of the people who work in these communities and contribute to their economic base have to live somewhere else and commute from long distances. Princeton Township has now taken its first long step away from that selfish company by approving a use variance for middle-income apartments. The 240-unit Princeton Community Housing (PCH) project, its mortgage interest and rentals federally subsidized, will be the first of its kind in the township.

The Township Committee's action was basically a recognition of the gross injustice of exclusionary zoning which is, pure and simple, an attempt to maximize ratables and minimize costs — particularly school costs — at the expense of neighboring municipalities. But there was a practical element in the decision, too: A desire, as Committeeman Thomas Hartmann said, to stay "ahead of the courts." Exclusionary zoning has already been knocked down judicially in Gloucester County and is under court attack in Bergen County and elsewhere.

We hope Princeton will welcome further apartment development, and that other municipalities will follow its lead. One great help would be faster action on the part of the New Jersey Housing Finance Agency, which processes the subsidy applications; PCH waited for more than a year for its planning grant application to be approved, during a time when construction costs were rising nearly a percentage point a month. Fast action by the state on final plans and costs is in order."

Bird-watchers and the birds they watch can be equally at home in the delightful setting of this eminently comfortable home which was designed to take full advantage of it. A handsome assortment of evergreens — groundcovers, shrubs and trees — adorn the house and the grounds, which slope gently down to a small copse and a winding brook at the back. Thanks to a big, secluded terrace and lots of glass, all of this can be enjoyed whether one is sitting out or merely looking out. Solid construction, sizeable rooms and a staggering amount of built-ins throughout are outstanding features of this modified contemporary. "Two-way stretch" could be used to describe the flexibility of the house. Split bedrooms (totaling 3), baths (2½), living rooms (2), and kitchens (2) allow for stretching the house for two "separate but equal" family living styles (teenagers, in-laws, etc.) All in all this is a good house in a good Western Section location and a good buy at an offering price of $82,500

Sunshine-shade, old trees — young house, dark woodwork — white walls, contemporary atmosphere — traditional lines — this attractive house is an interesting study in contrasts. Basics include: the floored foyer, spacious living room, dining room (all with high ceilings), fine kitchen with ample eating area, family room with brick fireplace wall, 5 bedrooms (or 4 plus den), 3 baths, utility-laundry room, redwood deck, oversized 2 car garage. The basic house is enhanced by many extras, tasteful landscaping with a rather Japanese use of rocks and evergreens, a pleasant, quiet and convenient location AND, towering over all, those great old trees! $87,000

TIRED OF CENTER HALL COLONIALS?

Here's a refreshing alternative in Princeton's Riverside, if a certain ennui has set in but you can't quite find the courage to go all the way to something really "contemporary." An open, informal floor plan includes entrance hall, sitting-dining room with fireplace, modern kitchen and breakfast room. Four bedrooms and two full baths. Panelled playroom with adjoining powder room, good basement, one car garage. The Piece de Resistance is the addition (1969) of a spectacular, large, air conditioned living room with dark oak flooring, fireplace, beamed ceiling and a wall of sliding glass opening to the perfectly situated deck. All in perfect order. Beautiful mature trees and shrubs. Available at once.

Member Princeton Real Estate Group...we'll show you every property available in Princeton & vicinity!

Late last winter we ran the following ad which elicited considerable interest — for good reason! However, eager buyers and less eager sellers could not get together. Things have changed. The house on slightly less land (now approximately 1.4 acres) has been reduced from $250,000 to an almost unbelievable $175,000. You can believe it won't be available by the time snow falls on it again!

132 ELM ROAD. If you don't know this quite special Princeton property, go look at it; if you can resist getting to know it better, we'll be most surprised. We'll also be delighted to introduce you if you are in the need of a gracious, roomy town estate which has, for a sporting family, the added attractions of tennis and squash courts, swimming pool and three nice acres.

Surround yourself with trees, grass and history.

There's plenty of all three on what may be the highest spot between New York and Philadelphia. Certainly it's one of the most historic, if not the most beautiful. Just 15 homes will be custom built from your plans or ours abutting Greenacres Country Club Golf Course. Each will share in a sweep of common land... and in views and privacy all but vanished these days. Isn't all this worth $50,000 or more?
